Revel with a Claus

LUKE PERKINS stood on Santa's right and Larissa Lostrom smiled as an unidentified boy stood to Santa's left at the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea's annual tree-lighting celebration held Dec. 14 at Carmel Plaza and Devendorf Park. The group posed shortly after Santa arrived in a shiny red Carmel Fire Department engine. The celebrations were part of an annual event sponsored by the Carmel Business Association, Carmel residents associations and the City of Carmel. The list of festivities also included games and pinatas at Devendorf Park, Pete the clown, the Nick Williams Band, the Carmel High School Band and carolers. Miles Williams was the master of ceremonies while Mayor Jean Grace lit the lights on the giant Christmas tree on the divider on Ocean Avenue. Free cookies were donated by community residents and the city provided hot apple cider. For more in the event turn to page 16. (Frank George photo.)

FAR rebuttals due at city hall on Dec. 21st

By FRANK GEORGE

IF YOU have strong opinions about the proposed 40 percent maximum FAR requirement, now is the time to be heard on the matter.

But there is a catch.

Rebuttals to pro and con ballot arguments for the proposed 40 percent floor area ratio limit for Carmel homes are due at city hall at 5 p.m. on Friday, Dec. 21.

However, only those fortunate enough to have their arguments picked for publication on the ballot are eligible to rebut their opposition's viewpoint. The arguments are available for public viewing all this week at city hall.

So a few Carmelites still have a chance to influence voters on the controversial issue, the subject of a March 5 special election.

Last week, City Councilman Jim Wright submitted the council's argument in favor of the 40 percent FAR. Meanwhile, Mayor Jean Grace, Councilman Bob Fischer, Helen Wilson and Robert Evans sent in an argument against the proposal.

This leaves room on the ballot for a rebuttal to Wright's argument, and a rebuttal to the mayor's group's proposal. But according to election codes, neither Wright nor Grace are committed to refute.

Rebuttals are limited to 250 words.

The ballot will ask voters to decide if both the Carmel General Plan and the specific FAR ordinance will spell out a 40 percent maximum.

Mission Ranch changes being challenged by CRA

By DAVID LELAND

WHILE CLINT Eastwood may possess the Midas Touch in Hollywood, his endeavors closer to home are beginning to take on the drama of an afternoon soap opera.

Just a few weeks away from Monterey County Planning Commission hearings regarding plans for Mission Ranch, the Carmel Residents Association has called for the study of several issues concerning proposed renovations at the 21-acre ranch.

"I'm very much surprised," said Carmel architect Alan Williams, who is representing Eastwood. "How bloody reasonable can you get?"

Increased traffic, restaurant renovation, added parking spaces and expanded use of the dance hall are among CRA worries.

The most recent Mission Ranch squabble comes on the heels of Eastwood's current battle with the City of Carmel concerning the rezoning of his building on San Carlos Street to allow expanded use.

But Vance Fraiser, who serves on the CRA executive committee, said it is imperative that Eastwood's Mission Ranch project be stopped until further studies are made.

"Environmentally sensitive areas such as Mission Ranch must be protected from the impact of commercial expansion," he said. "As a result of...past experience and in light of the newly

IN AN effort to allay environmental concerns regarding future development on the 20-acre Mission Ranch, Clint Eastwood has proposed that 12 acres of the pastureland be dedicated to a permanent scenic easement. The Carmel Residents Association, however, is claiming that building on certain portions of the ranch is merely paving the way toward future development. (Drawing courtesy of Carmel Development.)

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Letters to the editor are welcome. Views on all matters are acceptable, following the guidelines of good taste. While there is no limit on length, brevity is encouraged. Letters are subject to editing for style and length. Each letter must contain name, address and signature. A phone number is needed for verification only. Anonymous letters are not accepted.

Unfair and inappropriate

Dear Editor:

I wish to commend The Pine Cone for its excellent coverage of the Hatton Canyon story, featuring the outstanding work of Noel Mapstead (Dec. 6 issue).

I consider the remarks of William Thies in his letter to the editor (Dec. 13 issue), in which he questions the sincerity of Mr. Mapstead, to be grossly unfair and inappropriate.

Those of us who know Mr. Mapstead realize how very sincere he is in his efforts to protect the Hatton Canyon from environmental devastation by Caltrans. No one has made such a thorough study of the federal and state laws as they apply to the Hatton Canyon project, and he has been especially effective in bringing this information to the attention of concerned authorities.

Mr. Thies frequently invokes "health and safety" as reason for developing the canyon, yet he knows full well that the existing four-lane section of Highway 1 corrider through the Carmel area is one of the safest four-lane roads in the state of California.

Mr. Mapstead knows that the first and most important objective is to have Hatton Canyon declared off-limits for road development. Caltrans could then come forward and make their improvements needed in the existing corridor.

Successful marketing

Dear Editor:

For the last two weeks, the Carmel High economics classes have participated in a corporation project. The project consisted of separate classes selling their own food and drinks in a market-type atmosphere. The project was a huge success due to the exquisite food and the effort that was put into it.

On behalf of the economics classes, we would like to thank the staff, students, Padre Parents and other parents, and the community for their generous donations.

And a child shall lead us...

Dear Editor:

I thought you might want to publish this letter in your editorial section. It is a letter my daughter wrote on her very own to President Bush. She is a true animal lover and is terribly concerned about the environment and safety of all animals. I think her letter is a message from an innocent child that we should all think about.

Dear President Bush:

Please keep our Monterey Bay safe from oil drilling! I live across the street from Carmel Beach and would not like to see poor, helpless sea otters and other marine mammals covered with oil.

When I grow up I want to be a marine mammalogist. If we put in too many oil drills I'm afraid they'll all be endangered so I couldn't study them very well.

Please save them. Would you like it if people put oil drills in your home? Well the Monterey marine mammals wouldn't like it either. Some animals have already had that happen! The thing I don't understand is, why would one creature want to ruin another creature's home? We're on this earth together.

Please, please don't put oil drills in Monterey Bay, because pretty soon there will be no marine wildlife if you do.

Sincerely,

Kelsey McCallister

Give a child a gift

Dear Editor:

This holiday season make an investment in your own future – an investment that promises great returns over the years to come.

By sending your financial contribution to the Carmel Youth Center, a non-profit organization, you will be helping us provide the youth in our community with a healthy, safe, and constructive environment in which to spend their leisure time. Together we can help stem the awful tide of teen drug abuse, alcoholism, pregnancies, and suicide by just providing the finances necessary to maintain a facility teens can call their own and where they can constructively spend time with their peers.

The teenagers of today will be our community leaders tomorrow! They will be responsible for making intelligent and fair decisions for us and this nation.

Help us to help them...invest in the caretakers of tomorrow...your tomorrow.

Thank you. Please send your tax-deductible contributions to:

We the people...

Dear Editor:

I wish I could believe Mr. Bush, Mr. Chaney, etc. actually read our letters. I would love to say to Mr. Bush: "Dear Mr. President: Be we, the people, are in a negotiating mood; we, the people, do want to see if UN sanctions will work; we, the people, cannot afford another war, economically, socially, emotionally. We have enough problems at home without LEADING a war based on eons-old religious, territorial Middle Eastern disputes. To punish aggression is the province of UN forces (of which we would be only an equal part with other nations). To declare the U.S. at war, is the province of Congress.

We, the people, choose to pay more for oil, to cut down our use of it; rather than have an all-out military conflict.

This administration's "moods," "determinations," "deadlines," refusal to listen to elected representatives or appointed military experts, makes me, one of the people, feel totally disinfranchised.

I sincerely hope Mr. Bush and his close advisors have A Plan for Peace, and that his seeming eagerness for war is, as a friend suggests, a pose for effect. I, personally, have very little faith left in "lip-reading."

Donations made to Salvation Army good for heart and wallet

DECEMBER MEANS many things to many people – holidays, family gatherings, New Year's Eve. The last thing anyone wants to think about is taxes.

December is also the last month of the tax year, however, and those who plan ahead are looking for ways to reduce the tax burden they'll face come April.

One way smart taxpayers do that is by donating to a non-profit organization such as the Salvation Army. "A donation of unwanted but usable household items, from furniture and appliances to clothes and knick-knacks, is fully tax deductible at a value determined by the donor," said Major Oliver Stenvick of the Salvation Army.

In addition to the tax benefit, the donor has the satisfaction of giving to a good cause. All items donated to the Salvation Army are sold in local thrift stores.

"That revenue is the sole source of funds for the San Jose Adult Rehabilitation Center," Stenvick said.

The ARC is the Salvation Army's alcohol and substance abuse recovery program serving Santa Clara, Santa Cruz, San Benito and Monterey counties. It provides the residents with skill and confidence-building work therapy, group and individual counseling, and spiritual guidance.

The Salvation Army makes it as easy as possible for people to donate goods, according to Stenvick. There are 14 donation trailers placed throughout the four-county area, nine thrift stores, and free home pick-up from the familiar "Red Shield Trucks."

For information on trailer and store locations, or to arrange for a free home pick-up, call toll-free, 1-800-336-4900.

Caltrans feels it may be backed into a canyon

By DAVID LELAND

TALK ABOUT being caught between a rock and a hard place.

Caltrans officials concede that their proposal for a $34 million freeway through Hatton Canyon is destined for litigation – no matter what.

"If we don't do Hatton Canyon we'll be in court," said Gregg Albright, Caltrans community involvement coordinator, referring to efforts by a segment of the community to widen the existing Highway 1 to facilitate traffic flow.

'Caltrans is very confident that the Hatton Canyon highway is the only thing that will speak to the community's needs. We (Caltrans) wouldn't be responsible if we walked away and left Highway 1 tied up.'

– Gregg Albright

But Albright said Caltrans has been "inundated" with letters supporting plans for a freeway through the canyon by residents weary of traffic jams.

"We'd be out of here in a flash if there weren't support," he said.

He added that residents whose homes could be jeopardized by a widening of Highway 1 are also flooding Caltrans with letters of support for a road through the canyon.

To say that Caltrans officials are undaunted by continuing criticism would be an understatement.

A good-natured Albright chided the Carmel City Council for not seeking counsel from his agency before its resolution last spring to back the widening alternative of Highway 1.

"In just a few years the city fathers and mothers will be devastated by that decision," said Albright, citing potential impacts to air quality and quality of life if a road is not paved through the canyon. "Caltrans does not want to change the city of Carmel – we think that there will be a greater change in the quality of life if they don't come up with a traffic solution."

According to a fact sheet contained in the final environmental impact statement (expected to be approved by the FHWA in January with a public release slated for early February), Caltrans endorses two methods of alleviating traffic on Highway 1.

One of those options, however, has been deemed impractical.

A six-lane controlled access highway would require displacement of up to 78 homes, with acquisition costs alone exceeding $39 million, according to Caltrans. The total cost could run as much as $80 million.

"In light of the disruption to the community and the high construction cost, the controlled access alternate is considered unreasonable," according to the fact sheet. "Our inability to negotiate the necessary freeway agreements make this alternative unobtainable."

Albright said the move for four-laning Highway 1 is a "Band-Aid," solution which would be outdated within five years.

His reasoning is based on the fact that there will still be traffic signals if widening occurs.

"As long as you have a signal out there the system will be bottle-necked," he said. "That's the bottom line."

He balked at what would happen if the community and county agreed to select widening as a course of action.

"Caltrans would be in the position of justifying (to the state Transportation Commission) a project that would be a total waste of money," he said.

But even if widening occurred, Albright said Caltrans would retain its holdings in Hatton Canyon because, at some point, a road will need to be built to accommodate traffic flow.

FOR CALTRANS that means back to square one – a road through Hatton Canyon, also known as "IC Modified."

"Alternate IC Modified is the only practicable alternative available which achieves the basic project purpose and can be constructed," according to the report.

Simply put, Caltrans' project purpose is to move the existing traffic level, which could move from 53,000 daily trips today to 73,200 daily trips in 2010, to an acceptable level of service.

Last week in Carmel, Caltrans met with representatives from the U.S. Corps of Engineers, Environmental Protection Agency and U.S. Department of Fish & Game in an effort to convince skeptics to endorse a road through the canyon.

The meeting's agenda included defining traffic problems, a field review, project purpose and an evaluation of the alternatives.

The inter-agency discussions are expected to resume in January, according to Albright.

Albright said there is no "middle ground" concerning traffic routes.

"Caltrans is very confident that the Hatton Canyon highway is the only thing that will speak to the community's needs," Albright said. "We (Caltrans) wouldn't be responsible if we walked away and left Highway 1 tied up."

As an aside, Albright said that the term "highway" has now been substituted for "freeway."

In what appears to be a marketing strategy, Albright said the road will be a "scenic highway," and will look like a "rural highway."

But at least one participant at last week's inter-agency meeting is taking a "show me" stance.

"Everything is based on projected traffic flow – I want to see how they derived those numbers," said Craig Vassel, an environmental planner with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. "Where is the evidence for a disaster if the freeway is not built?"

'Everything is based on projected traffic flow – I want to see how they derived those numbers. Where is the evidence for a disaster if the freeway is not built?'

– Craig Vassel

Albright scoffed at the notion that the highway is being built purely to satisfy development laid out in the area's land use plan.

"Not building the highway will not stop development," said Albright, adding that increased tourism and residents owning more than one car exacerbates the problem. "It's too late."

Albright ventured that "within three or four years" the wait for cars sitting at Highway 1/Carpenter Street signal will last as long six minutes.

He reiterated that Caltrans has gone out of its way to explore options to building in the canyon.

"I have never seen a (Caltrans) district investigate so many options," he said.

Water district hit with a lawsuit against moratorium

By FRANK GEORGE

A LAWSUIT filed against the water district might prevent the adoption of the water supply and the moratorium on new hook-ups recently approved by the district.

Frank Chiorazzi and Thomas Modisette, who filed the suit against the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District on Dec. 12, also ask for payment of legal fees as well as court costs.

The lawsuit alleges the water board added a new option to its final environmental study that the public never saw or commented upon.

And while the intent of the lawsuit may be to free-up water supplies, just the opposite could prove true.

"It could be counter-productive in dealing with the moratorium," said water board director Karin Strasser Kauffman, who supports the board's recent decision. "If the lawsuit is successful, it could prevent the water from the Seaside well from being distributed."

The new Seaside well is scheduled for operation next spring. It is expected to yield some 1,000 acre feet of water annually, with about 385 acre feet of that water targeted toward new water connections.

But at least one water board member found solace with the lawsuit.

"I think it was predictable," said Jim Hughes, who cast the lone "nay" for opposing the water moratorium.

Hughes said the board was negligent in exploring alternatives to the supply options. The lawsuit, he said, may force the board to take a second look at the situation.

However, board chairman Dick Heuer defended the decision. He said it is common practice to change an allocation option after it has been circulated.

"If you had to re-circulate after every change, it would be a never-ending process," Heuer said.

Chiorazzi and Modisette are described in the document as property owners within the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District. According to their attorney, Mike Masuda, Chiorazzi operates a specialty logo company in Salinas, while Modisette owns an electronics firm.

Modisette's property is in Pebble Beach, Masuda said. As of press time, it was not known where Chiroazzi's land is located.

The suit questions the district's adoption of Water Supply Option V, which allocates 16,744 acre feet annually for peninsula water users' consumption. The document also says the district did not adequately analyze the environmental impacts of the new supply. (A second reading of the allocation was approved by the district's board of directors at its Dec. 12 hearing, as was a second hearing on the moratorium on new water hook-ups.)

The suit was filed at Salinas Superior Court by Masuda, who works for Noland, Hamerly, Etienne and Hoss of Salinas. Masuda said his clients chose to act on Dec. 12 because of a filing deadline.

Masuda said he and his colleague, attorney Lloyd Lowrey, Jr., will meet with the district's legal counsel, David Laredo, during the week of Dec. 17. Through their discussions with Laredo, Masuda said he and Lowrey will be "deciding if we're going to go forward with (the lawsuit)."

The lawsuit goes on to say Chiorazzi and Modisette will be "irrepairably injured" by the selection of Option V and the enactment of the moratorium. The document says the two will have "growth-inducing and cumulative impacts both within and outside of the district's boundaries."

In certifying the EIR and adopting Option V, the document says, the district did not comply with the California Environmental Quality Act.

If litigation goes forward, the lawsuit calls for a stay of adoption of the allocation and the water moratorium. Payment for legal fees and "other relief" will also be considered.

With the allocation, the district is committed to a five-year, $1.1 million environmental impact mitigation program. This includes aid to fishery, riparian vegetation, wildlife and lagoon vegetation programs.

Both board approvals of the allocation and the moratorium were by a 4-1 vote, with Director Jim Hughes in the minority. Directors Strasser Kauffman, Dale Hekhuis, Ken Long and Heuer voted in the majority. Director Paul Davis, who works as an architect in Monterey, dismissed himself from the proceedings, due to a conflict of interest.

Boardmembers said the allocation, which was the lowest of five options, was not adopted in response to the drought. They maintain it was chosen because the district has outgrown its water supply.

The moratorium will be lifted when new water supplies are tapped, the district says.

One such supply is the Seaside well approved in a 4-1 vote at the Dec. 13 meeting. Heuer dissented in that vote.

The new well will be located on Peralta Avenue near Fort Ord in Seaside. Heuer said the lawsuit against the allocation would prevent the tapping of the well, as the directors relied on that EIR when they approved the new water source.

The well is scheduled to be on line next spring, but perhaps only 270 or 385 of the well's projected 1,000 acre feet annual production will actually be set aside for new permits over the next five years. A substantial amount of water drawn from the new well will go toward drought reserve.

Be that as it may, the board will wait for recommendations from technical and political advisory committees before deciding how the water will be distributed to the cities and unincorporated areas in the district.

Meanwhile, the board decided that all water permit applications properly submitted before the moratorium takes effect Jan. 1 should be processed. Michael Ricker, water demand manager, said, however, that his department is swamped, and it would be "physically impossible" to process all the applications before closing time on Dec. 31.

According to Henrietta Stern, district public information representative, the extension will allow the district to honor those who have legally gone through the process.

We're moving!

THE Carmel Pine Cone will be moving its offices, but we won't be going far.

Our new offices will be located on Fourth Avenue between Mission Street and San Carlos Street in Carmel. The office is located on the south side of the building, which stretches the entire northern side of the block, but the complex can be entered either at Fourth Avenue, Mission Street or San Carlos Street.

Pine Cone offices will officially open at the new location on Monday, Dec. 31. Pine Cone offices will be closed from Monday, Dec. 24 through Sunday Dec. 30.

The phone number will remain the same for the time being – 624-0162 (624-8076 for FAX). You may have some trouble reaching various departments on Thursday, Dec. 20 and Friday, Dec. 21, because of the move, but keep trying.

The Pine Cone's last issue of the year will hit the streets on Thursday, Dec. 20. There will be NO Dec. 27 issue. Deadline for the Jan. 3 issue will remain the same as usual, Friday, Dec. 28.

Happy holidays to all!

MIRA astronomer discovers new interstellar matter

DR. ANA Torres-Dodgen, an astronomer at the Monterey Institute for Research in Astronomy, has discoverd evidence of two new components of the material used to form stars.

The discovery was made at the MIRA Observatory located in the Los Padres National Forest. The area being studied, called Cygnus OB2, is an association of very blue, hot stars that astronomers think have formed only recently. During a routine analysis of the light from these blue giant stars in the constellation Cygnus, she discovered the evidence for two previously unnoticed types of matter. Since this has not been seen in the light of other stars or interstellar gas clouds, this material may just be associated with the formaton of these rare giant stars.

"Some of the most exciting discoveries in astronomy have been serendipitous," said Torres-Dodgen, the Luis Alvarez Research Fellow at the Observatory. "The true atomic identity of this material may take years to decipher." This spring she will be searching other star groupings for further evidence of this exotic material. The discovery will be published in December by the Astronomical Society of the Pacific.

This stellar association contains a lot of dust that obscures the stars and preferentially absorbs their blue light over their red light. Torres-Dodgen used an electronic detector cooled with liquid nitrogen on the 36-inch diameter MIRA telescope to look at the red light of 12 stars in the region Cygnus OB2. She found two spectral lines for which she could not find any description or identification from previous studies. Other stars observed the same night, and stars of the same type as those in Cygnus OB2 do not show those lines, so the lines are most likely created by the dust in the association.

MIRA is an independent, nonprofit observatory dedicated to research and education in astronomy and is the only independent professional American observatory started in this century. For more information call 375-3220.

Mission Ranch changes challenged

proposed project, it is clear that a complete analysis of the impacts of this expansion upon the environment and the local community must be made.''

Mission Ranch is located just outside the Carmel city limits. The county planning staff has recommended that a negative declaration be given for the project.

A negative declaration means that a comprehensive environmental impact report will not be needed.

The major portion of the proposed work at Mission Ranch entails taking down nine guest cottages and putting four buildings back in their place.

While that increases the room number from 26 to 31 units, the actual square footage on the ground is reduced.

Williams said he is taken aback by the current controversy, having conducted about five meetings with area residents during the summer concerning plans for the ranch.

In addition, the project has received the blessing of Carmel Heritage and the Monterey County Preservation Committee.

''We're not interested in fighting with anybody,'' said Williams.

Nevertheless, a major discrepancy has surfaced regarding the CRA's and Williams' definition of wetland.

ACCORDING TO the CRA, almost the entire Mission Ranch lies in wetland – that includes an area near Dolores Street where four cottages are being taken down to be replaced by one building.

But Williams disagrees with the CRA.

That area on the east side of the ranch does lie in a flood plain, but not in wetland, he said.

Williams added that a flood plain is inundated with water statistically once every 100 years, while a wetland is covered with water an average of two weeks annually.

But Fraiser worries that, if the county allows new construction on what he considers to be wetlands, it will set a precedent for whomever owns the ranch in the future.

''Granting a variance for one four-unit rental on the flood plain constitutes a reversal of 10 years of bitter struggle to prevent commercial expansion of Mission Ranch on the flood plain and wetlands,'' he said. ''There are no visible circumstances or hardship conditions that could clearly make an exception to this new request by Mission Ranch for a variance.''

Williams countered, however, by noting that if existing cabins were renovated, their floors would be under water if a flood occured.

To show good faith concerning future development, Williams said Eastwood has offered to dedicate 12 acres of the ranch as permanent easement.

''Clint bought the ranch to preserve wetlands,'' Williams said, adding that a small portion of the northern end of the pasture is already under a sewer easement.

When Eastwood purchased Mission Ranch in December of 1986, residents rejoiced at the deal because it meant that a massive housing project slated for the ranch would be derailed.

'Environmentally sensitive areas such as Mission Ranch must be protected from the impact of commercial expansion.'
– Vance Fraiser

The city had unsuccessfully attempted to purchase the property, but had run into various snags prior to Eastwood's involvement.

When Eastwood, then mayor, entered the picture the Mission Ranch Corp. had proposed to build 61 townhouses on about 8.25 acres of the property.

After purchasing the ranch for about $5 million, Eastwood uttered his now well-known quote in The Pine Cone: ''Maybe the world doesn't allow you to keep things the same, but we can try.''

Williams fumed at the CRA's accusations aimed at Eastwood.

''We're willing to put our money where our mouth is,'' he said. ''But what else can we fairly be asked to do?''

Joseph Yang's wireworks shown

"Wireworks," an expression of Chinese painting using fine wire and solder, will be featured throughout December in the Hallway Gallery of the Carmel Foundation.

The artist is Joseph Yang, who was born in Manchuria in 1926. At the close of World War II, after the dissolution of his wealthy family, Yang began a tortuous 2,000 mile journey by foot to southern China. His path would then lead him across the Pacific via Taiwan and Japan to America.

When Yang came to Carmel 20 years ago, the peace of his new home afforded him the environment to concentrate on his paintings and calligraphy. From the discipline and beauty of the expressed line – the key to Chinese painting – Yang developed his wireworks. His materials are simple: fine wire and solder. The spontaneity of his design belies the complexity of thought given to creating both a visually pleasing and structurally sound piece of work.

Yang attended Meiji University, Tokyo, Japan, and received his M.A. in international relations in 1966.

SPCA special holiday adoption policies

As in past years, the SPCA of Monterey County, A Humane Society, will have special adoption policies from Dec. 21 through Dec. 25.

While adoptions will not cease, those adopting a dog or cat during this particular time will not be permitted to take their new pet home until the morning of Wednesday, Dec. 26, provided the animal has been spayed or neutered.

This action is being taken because the SPCA has found that with the stress of the holidays and extra activity around the home, a new pet is often ignored. Therefore, for the protection of the animal which needs special care at adoption time, the SPCA will keep the pet until the day following Christmas.

For information call 373-2631 or 422-4721.

How do you see us in Twenty-Sixteen?

Where are we going — where have we been?

The dreamers have dreamt, the builders have built.

Will we look back with pride, or look back with guilt?

So step forward now and take part in the plan

We seek your input — each woman and man!

The future is coming, if we're ready or not,

But it's going to take planning, and dreaming a lot.

FAR rebuttals are due Dec. 21st

Under a FAR limit, the square footage of each level of a home is compared to the total land, keeping tight control on the bulk of structures when they go up to two levels.

At present, the General Plan says the FAR shall not exceed 45 percent.

The highly emotional debate began last spring, when the council was considering a sweeping ordinance that would change other building regulations, including open space requirements. The ordinance was sent to the council by the planning commission.

Then, Councilwoman Barbara Brooks suggested changing the FAR from 45 to 40 percent. But since the proposal had not been publicly noticed on the council's agenda, the first vote on the ordinance and the new FAR was postponed unitl the next meeting.

The council approved the ordinance and the FAR at that hearing, and they were again OK'd the following month. The two meetings were held not at city hall, but at the Carmel Woman's Club on San Carlos Street due to the overwhelming public response.

The council then responded to public outcry by discussing the possibility of putting the 40 percent issue to a pupular vote. Again the new idea had not been properly noticed so the question was placed on the council's next agenda.

The following month, the council adopted the ballot idea, but they also approved language asking the public to OK either a 40 or 45 percent FAR.

Nevertheless, Councilman Ken White resurrected the debate at the November hearing. White said the 40 or 45 percent wording was too complicated and it did not correspond to the language originally adopted by the council.

At that same meeting, the council came close to taking the measure off the ballot entirely, but instead they decided to discuss it again in December, when they elected to leave it on the ballot with the current wording.

On the other hand, the council's fickle behavior is being sharply criticized by at least one concerned resident.

"They have weakened the ballot measure to the point where we no longer have a clear choice," said Carmel resident Diane Kramer, who lives on the west side of Monte Verde Street between 13th Avenue and Santa Lucia Street.

"In August, the council promised to give us a choice between 40 and 45 percent on 4,000-square-foot lots."

Kramer said a "strong and fair" design review would maintain Carmel's charm better than a reduction in the size of houses. A design review focuses on how a structure is situated on a parcel in comparison to other homes in the neighborhood.

Be that as it may, Carmelite Esther Criddle dissents Kramer's views.

"Over-sized houses on small lots spoil the uniqueness of this city," said Criddle, who along with her husband, Jay, owns an 860-square-foot house on Third Avenue, southwest of Fourth on Guadalupe. Since the Criddle home is situated on a 4,000-square-foot lot, their FAR is less than 25 percent.

'Over-sized houses on small lots spoil the uniqueness of this city.'

— Esther Criddle

Jeanne Brehmer, city clerk, said voter approval of the 40 percent FAR would finalize the question, but Carmel developer Chris Tescher has said local realtors and contractors may put their own referendum before the public if the measure passes.

Councilman Jim Wright said the FAR ordinance would be brought back to the council "with appropriate changes" if the ballot fails. He said the council would then vote to retain the 45 percent FAR.

The March 5 special election will coincide with the Carmel Unified School District's parcel tax vote. If approved by Carmel voters, the parcel tax would levy an annual fee that would pay for improvements on school buses, roofs and parking lots.

The election will cost between $8,000 and $10,000, with funding coming from city election funds that were appropriated at the council's biennial budget meeting in September. Tescher said a second referendum election might cost the city twice as much, as it wouldn't coincide with any other election.

CVPOA hears discouraging news on Pacific Meadows

By SUSAN BECK

"NOEL MAPSTED might want to get out of Hatton Canyon for a while and go up to Pacific Meadows."

That suggestion was made by Roger Williams, a board member of the Carmel Valley Properties Owners Association (CVPOA) at its Dec. 12 meeting.

Williams thought it would be a good idea for the Carmel environmentalist to visit the site because of what he discovered at the $13 million senior citizens housing project in Carmel Valley located at the site formerly known as Carmel Valley Overview.

"I don't think anybody really anticipated this, it's a monster," said Williams. "It's the most amazing development in years that has managed to get through without a lot of comment from anyone."

He said the main road leading up to the project is an "engineering masterpiece" and will have to be dealt with for many years. There are numerous deep cuts and possible fills. It all leads to Carmel Valley Road.

"If we get rains as we have in the past years, we are going to see a terrible mess. The cuts and fills are far above and beyond anything conceivable," said Williams.

He said that he could not understand how the project could be economically feasible. The cost of the entry road alone, as well as water usage during contruction, especially in a time of drought and water rationing, is "astronomical."

Water trucks are used in significant numbers to dampen the road to keep the dust down for nearby Del Mesa residents and for compaction, said Williams. "Off the top of my head, I would say it is close to 1 million gallons of water."

Rod Mills, CVPOA board member, said that the project looked like an airstrip. "It's a real mess." The board decided to check into the matter because of the obvious erosion and siltation problems.

Pacific Meadows is a 200-unit rental project for low- and moderate-income seniors on 15 acres located within a 350-acre parcel on Carmel Valley road just east of Highway 1.

The project is partially funded by Wells Fargo Bank and Intrust of Delaware, an organization that assists non-profit groups via tax credits, which has committed $6.9 million to the project. Pacific Meadows is expected to open in December 1991.

"This should satisfy some of our supervisors who are concerned about senior housing for a long time to come," said Williams.

More on water, board member Robert Greenwood reported that the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District Board of Directors were about to decided whether to authorize drilling of a well in Seaside and if some of that water would be allocated for new connections.

On Dec. 13 the water board authorized the drilling of a new Seaside well, called Paralta. After the board's decision, Greenwood said that the new well will produce an additional 1,000 acre feet to the peninsula water system.

The decision on water allocation will be held off until spring when the county's water resources can better be determined. One of the good things about Paralta is that it will act as a safety valve by continuing to produce water in dry years, said Greenwood.

Cal-Am Water Co. can shift over to Paralta, therefore reducing the need to pump from Carmel Valley. He said that the water board will probably allocate the well's water for drought reserve and new connections.

IN A discussion on Title 21, a state-required revision and update of the county's present zoning ordinance, Title 20, CVPOA president, Max Chaplin, said that it could affect everyone and everything in the county.

"No one could walk out the door and not get a citation." He said that a Title 21 citizens committee has spent five months reviewing and deciphering its complex details.

Board member Ileene Crane-Franks, said that she suspects people will become very interested in Title 21 when it reaches the zoning map phase.

Patricia Bernardi, board member, added that, "Some people are going to be so surprised when they find out they have a non-conforming piece of property."

The main reason for revising Title 20 is to bring it into compliance with all county area plans, said Bernardi.

Chaplin went on to say that Title 21 committee members really deserve a vote of thanks for their "careful attention to their task."

The board set up a sub-committee to further review the finalized report of Title 21 before next month's presentation to the Monterey County Board of Supervisors.

Another motion was made for CVPOA to request an environmental assessment from the county concerning land use at Garland Ranch Park in Carmel Valley.

With the traffic level up on Carmel Valley Road, and the information that the proposed Indian Village "Window on the West" at the Cooper Ranch may involve a nationwide publicity campaign, board member Rod Mills suggested an environment impact report.

A nationwide publicity campaign could substantially increase the tourist traffic into the valley, said Mills. "Garland Ranch Park is the centerpiece of the regional park district, and I'm very concerned about what happens to it."

'I don't think anybody really anticipated this, it's a monster. It's the most amazing development in years that has managed to get through without a lot of comment from anyone.'

— Roger Williams

The next CVPOA meeting will be on Jan. 9 at 7:30 p.m. at the Mid Valley Fire Department on Carmel Valley Road.

QUAIL LODGE in Carmel Valley has been awarded the Mobil Travel Guide Five-Star Award for the 15th time for its superior accommodations.

Quail Lodge gets Five-Star Award from Mobil guide

FOR THE 15th time, Quail Lodge Inc. has been awarded Mobile Travel Guide Five-Star Award for its superior Carmel Valley accommodations.

Twenty-one establishments were given the honor from more than 21,000 hotels reviewed nationwide.

The recipients of the award range in size from 12 rooms to 800 rooms.

"The criteria for the famed Five-Star ratings are unequaled in the industry, and the Quail Lodge unquestionably meets this challenge," according to Allen Murray, chairman of the board for Mobil. "Your (Quail Lodge's) attention to dedication to consistency of excelence, outstanding service, distinctive facilities, gracious hospitality and, above all, your aim in the pursuit of perfection make the Quail Lodge one of the best places to visit in Amnerica."

Quail Lodge, which opened in 1965, is locally owned. All of the architects, interior designers and landscapers are also local.

Ed Haber, a spokesman for Quail Lodge, said he is thrilled to receive such a prestigious rating.

"It's a tremendous honor to think that this happened to one of the local establishments in Carmel Valley," Haber said. "To be one of 21 out of the whole United States is making our employees ecstatic."

Haber credits the successs to Quail Lodge's 200 employees, 30 percent whom have been with the hotel for more than five years.

Planners deny split of property containing Comstock-built home

By FRANK GEORGE

DESPITE PERSUASIVE arguments from his attorney, the Carmel Planning Commission denied a Carmel man's bid for a property split that he says would have enabled him to preserve his Comstock home.

The Dec. 12 denial leaves Jon Hagstrom the option of appealing the decision to the city council, and he has indicated he will do so.

Commissioner Lindsay Hanna was the lone dissenter in the 4-1 denial. Commissioners Carla Ramsey, John Kennedy, Brian Congleton and Steve Poohar voted with the majority, and Barbara Lysle and Philip Coniglio were absent.

Hagstrom wants to sell a second house on his Casanova and Palou property in the event that his company, U.S. Air, decides to transfer him. It would not be possible to sell the house without splitting the parcel, and Hagstrom says he could not afford to keep and maintain the Comstock building without the sale.

But most of the commissioners pointed out the division would make the Comstock parcel under 4,000 square feet, which is the minimum lot size in Carmel. Poohar admitted there were persuasive arguments for the division, but he didn't think the Comstock home was immediately threatened. Hanna did not agree.

"I think it would be unfortunate to let this one just drop with a denial," said Hanna. He said Hagstrom's was one of the few houses he would "go to bat to try to save."

Hagstrom's attorney, Myron Etienne, said the split would have "teeth" that would ensure the survival of the building. Hagstrom has argued the land is worth more than the property, and developers might tear the historically significant Comstock home down to make room for a more lucrative structure.

Etienne and his client tried to convince the commission that coupling the two new parcels with adjacent city property would make both of them the minimum lot size, but a most of the commissioners did not agree.

Congleton said they would be "in dangerous territory" if they granted the use of that city land. He also didn't agree that granting the variance would protect the Comstock house from destruction.

Diane White, director of the city planning department, said in the seven years she has worked for the city, no planning commissions have ever allowed such a split.

IN OTHER action, commissioners decided to postpone action on a new two-story house because the applicant's neighbor is hard of hearing, and he couldn't keep up with the proceedings.

The unusual 4-1 decision, with Ramsey the lone dissenter, allows David Meblin to listen to tapes from the hearing before the commission takes action.

Meblin will submit an argument in writing to the commissioners, which they will consider at their Dec. 19 meeting. If they find Meblin's argument substantial, the public hearing will be reopened prior to the vote.

Meblin is protesting Donald and Diane Kramer's plans to demolish their home on Monte Verde between 13th and Santa Lucia. Meblin says the new two-story structure that would be put in its place would encroach on his viewshed and block the sunlight from his second-story living room.

"Now we'll be seeing their roof instead of trees from our second-story window," Meblin complained. His house is situated to the north of the Kramers on south Monte Verde.

But Mrs. Kramer said she had gone over the plans with Meblin prior to the hearing. She also indicated she and her husband had made every attempt to protect their surrounding neighbor's views.

Meblin actually lives in Palo Alto, and rents the house to LaVelle Stonebraker. Meblin said at one time, he actually had an ocean view from the house, which he says was one of the first built in the neighborhood.

Crime prevention tips for holidays

THE MONTEREY County Sheriffs Department is encouraging all its citizens to take special precautions this month to insure a safe and joyful holiday season.

The holidays are a special time of year. However, statistics indicate citizens' continued vulnerability to burglary, robbery, and other crimes during the holiday season. Here are some tips to help you avoid becoming a victim of crime:

1. Remember to lock all doors and windows.
2. Use automatic timers for lights, television and radio to give your home an occupied appearance when no one is home.
3. Avoid displaying gifts where they can be seen from outside the home.
4. Use light-colored outside lights for decoration.
5. When you are shopping, lock all presents and valuables in your trunk.
6. When you are moving presents from the store to your vehicle, make more than one trip if necessary so that you do not overload your arms with packages.
7. Remember to mark all new belongings with your driver's license or identification number.

Don't fall victim to crime or violence. By observing these holiday safety tips, you and your family can look forward to a safe, sober and joyous holiday season.

Have a Very Merry Christmas and New Year's!

Sierra 49er Express

ABOARD THE Sierra 49er Express — En route. This is a private train worth riding to nowhere and back. In this case it's going to Reno.

The passengers on this midweek run are older than the Friday crowd that escapes from its urban habitat and heads for the slopes or gaming tables, but they are no less bent on having fun.

In the bar-entertainment lounge, a duo and singer knock out the theme song to Picnic as a couple glides across the spacious dance floor with the smoothness that comes from the ballroom era of yesteryear.

"Who played the female lead in Picnic? the female vocalist asks the group near the bar.

"Kim Hunter," a woman ventures.

Welcome to the Sierra 49er Express shakedown cruise to Reno with pick-up stops in Oakland, Richmond, Martinez and Sacramento. It's a Bloody Mary Get-Together for the passengers who boarded at San Jose and it's just 8:45 a.m.

For the next eight hours, if the timing is good, everyone aboard this splendidly recreated train with its luxury dome cars will be treated to the sights of the snow-capped Sierra and the first-rate cuisine from the private and completely stocked kitchen. This is just the second trial run before regularly scheduled trains leave twice weekly from San Jose beginning Jan. 11.

Up the curving flight of mahogany-trimmed stairs to the dome car, passengers attack "Brain Buster 2," a 20-question test for points to prizes that can reveal one's age ("Who was the first Secretary General of the United Nations?"), and challenge one's cultural savvy ("Which play by Arthur Miller is based on the 'Salem Witch Trials'?"

"What is the most familiar name for the International Lawn Tennis Championship?" asks a woman.

"Forest Lawn," says a golfer from the Napa Country Club who boarded in Sacramento.

Across the aisle a 40ish man is reading Casino Games, as folk singer Peter Wilson of Grass Valley strolls through singing Nobody Knows You When You're Down and Out. Wilson sings from experience; he was a regular entertainer on the Fun Train that ceased running to Reno last year. Passengers who survived the Fun Train days say there is no comparison with the Sierra 49er Express.

It might be said that the difference between the two trains would be like sitting in the end zone at Candlestick instead of deBartolo's private box.

At a leisurely lunch, which is more like dinner, there's a choice of filet mignon, roasted breast of duck, fresh salmon or stir-fried vegetables and pasta. In the kitchen car Executive Chef Jimmy DellaTorre, a New York transplant via Milwaukee, is overseeing the presentation of the servings with an expertise that belies his 27 years.

Placements of china, stemmed wine glasses, dove-gray table cloth, Tiffany-type lamps and the Wedgewood Blue pattern of the high-backed chairs give a sophistication that's train-proof yet fragile.

The atmosphere in the dining rooms and first class lounge casts an air not far removed from the romantic aura of The Orient Express. Was that Lauren Bacall entering the parlor car?

There's an appreciation that the train is owned and operated by Transcisco Industries, a San Francisco-based company with more experience in railcar maintenance and retrofitting than in interior design. Besides, Dianne Gardner, the woman who created these cars from scratch and sold them for unknown umpteens to Transcisco, is on board as a consultant during the early runs.

She's a petite frosted blond with a CEO manner from a town called Slinger, Wis., and she and her husband, who owns a railroad and two private cars, began her venture with $3 million. Refreshingly, she's never heard of Carmel. No questions about Clint and ice cream cones.

"It took three years to put the cars together," she explained, adding that her husband John owns a train restoration business. In Milwaukee, where the luxury dome cars originated, the train was known as "Scenic Rail Dining."

"I read every book I could get my hands on and I talked to older people about trains. I saw pictures of The Orient Express and I researched it in books. I wanted the cars to be like The Oriental Express, but with a soft art deco feeling. Don't you think this train is a great way to meet people? It's be great for corporations."

The lunch is drawn out by comparison to a typical stationary restaurant, but who's going anywhere? It beats you-know-what out of driving up 80 in the snow. No chains, no mess. No nerves. At an adjacent table the man who's been reading about helpful gambling techniques is talking with his buddy.

"When we get to Bally's I'm going to look for a nice lady dealer who will take care of me." His friend sips an imported beer without comment.

As Jose, a Puerto Rican who came with the train from Milwaukee, was clearing a table where four elders sat, a complaint about the al dente vegetables could easily be overheard.

"My mother used to cook the vegetables," a woman told Joe McGrath, the train's director and former Radio City Music Hall entertainer.

"Oh," said McGrath, "we don't kill them anymore. They scream too much."

Back in the dome a man looks at his watch, then looks out the window as the train passes the Royal Gorge ski area.

"According to my watch this should be Truckee," he announces to no one special. Truckee won't come up for another 35 minutes.

The book-reading gambler and his friend return to the car and continue their discussion on the philosophy of betting to win.

"The book says don't tip the dealer until you're finished."

"Naw, that's all wrong. Tip each time you hit a blackjack. Tipping's good for the karma."

"Who played the lead in Psycho?" a woman struggling to finish "Brain Buster 2" asks.

"Gregory Peck."

"Oh, no! I can see his face."

The Napa Country Club golfers, about 16 men and women, loudly complain that they paid extra for assigned seating, but had to sit in the lounge. Car captain Tim Raw (yes, folks), politely explains there was a computer mix-up. Unappeased, the golfers drift off into talk about their club – apparently for the benefit of the other passengers.

"Yeah, we're going to realign the course."

"Yeah, you gotta have a plan."

"Right, we need a progressive plan."

Meanwhile a magician is performing card tricks to the delight of a couple from Oakland. Someone wished he could make the Napa honkers disappear.

Happily, the train begins its approach into Reno. The casinos come into sight, crossing guards drop into place and the autos back up on both sides. Reno. El Dorado Cadillac. Hurry on down to Reno.

"Oh, lady you forgot your bag. It's sure heavy!"

"It should be. I've been saving quarters for two years."

Every one of this artist's dolls has a story to tell

By SUSAN BECK

IF EVERY picture tells a story, so do all of Jane Cather's dolls.

Cather, a Carmel Valley resident, is an artist who for the past 10 years has carried on the time-honored tradition of early cloth doll makers.

Written in the hem of her doll's dresses are their stories. "I am innocent of evil. My only and true purpose is desire for connection to the earth....I am a woman," is a portion of Cather's "helper" doll's story. The "helper" is perhaps her most favored doll, and one she made early on in her doll-making.

Her "helper's" story is in essence what Cather is all about, too.

"My 'helper' doll represents a lot of different things to me. I need things around to give me energy. Certain things set a tone, express an attitude of comfort and happiness. She does this for me," said Cather.

Cather works on her dolls in a cozy shop at her valley home. Not only are there dolls, there are scenes of special times and situations in the windows of her shop. For example, there's an entire Christmas setting with a miniature tree, gifts, and a myriad of holiday accessories to make the picture complete.

There isn't one answer to why she has devoted her creativity to doll making. All of her family are artists of one kind or another. "It's a family tradition," she said.

One Christmas while working for an advertising agency in New York, she decided to make dolls for her friends and family. Cather always liked antiques, and "serious" cloth doll collections appealed to her.

"The unself-consciousness of those dolls said more to me. They were made by mothers who said to their daughters, 'let's make a doll.' They are more expressive of human feelings, and are a loving gift," said Cather.

With cloth dolls there is an opportunity to incorporate everything Cather likes to work with. Jewelry, silk screening, batiking are all woven into her dolls. The assessories are unlimited, she said.

"My dolls are not just an exhibit of jewelry and fabric. They represent a point of view and the accessories support their personality."

Cather actually writes a story for the doll before she creates it. Like her "helper" doll's story, which is really much longer, there is Dora Brown whose simple story is, "Coven Number Three: Entirely Decent Woman."

There are a least 500 dolls with their own personal stories that Cather has created since she began her doll business. She makes about 50 each year.

"I don't like to take a lot of orders for dolls. I find it too restrictive when it's set what someone wants. I prefer to work on a group of dolls at one time," said Cather.

Despite not taking special orders, she has no trouble in selling the dolls, even at an average price of $350. People hear about her work as far away as the East Coast. When they are in town, they give her a call.

Cather displays her dolls once or twice a year. Next year, she will be in Williamsburg, Va. for a doll show. For the last few years she has put on a show at Tancredi and Morgen, an antique and special item gift shop in Carmel Valley.

The type of people who are interested in buying a specialized cloth doll are women who buy them for themselves, families who want to pass them down through generations, and men who usually buy them for or with their wives, said Cather.

She said that th people who buy her dolls have only one common denominator, a sense of humor. "I have a lot of humor with my dolls. They are very personal."

Cather especially likes to create "fetish" dolls. She has a "crow" doll in her home with crow bones and feathers. "I like them because you don't have to put it all together at once. You can continue to add, and so can the new owner."

She also make purses. "There is a world in a purse," she said, having created a "witches" purse which contained a Kiss Me Lipstick, old antique hairpins, hair net (for unruly witch hair), black bra replacement snap, and so on. This is just another form of story telling, said Cather.

It always amazes Cather how many ways there are to make up a doll. "The ideas are endless as the universe," she said. Even though dolls are her mainstay, the valley dollmaker wants to have more paper-related items. She has published some of her doll stories and a pie cookbook. Her goal is to branch out into postcards, poems, and illustrations.

Cather and her dolls have received a lot of attention, and she has appeared in numerous magazines such as the 1990 edition of Christmas: The Annual of Christmas Literature and Art.

Cather said that making dolls helps her communicate her positive feelings and attitude.

"It's the essense of being centered. Thinking about a woman in a creative situation causes you to examine your own feelings. Hopefully, my dolls' personalities reflect me."

TAKE MY WORD FOR IT

By D. Patrick Gallagher

A sad story

WHEN PEOPLE run for public office, no one comes to the candidates and offers money for their campaign if they will vote a certain way. That sort of blatant vote-buying is seldom seen today.

Special interests, whether they be labor unions, environmentalists, or political action committees (PACS) for realtors, the financial markets, oil interests or whatever, simply ask candidates their views on subjects of interest to them and then make a decision as to whether or not to invest in their elections. After one is elected, however, the game begins to change ever so slightly. One indication of that long-term intent of campaign contributions is the fact that many special interests contribute to both candidates in a close election.

People who run for public office are supposed to do so out of a desire to serve other people. They are not supposed to see public service as a job. If one is seeking a paycheck, one might suggest they go out and find another way to make a living. Public service, ideally, is just that.

Unfortunately we do not live in an ideal world, but the efforts to limit terms of office indicate that most people do see public office as something quite different from a career. Voters are beginning to emphasize the concept of service and are telling people who run for office to consider it a short-term opportunity to help your community, and then get back to your regular job and get on with making a living.

Under our present system, once people are elected to office and begin paying bills with the income received as officeholders, they forget they are there to serve and they begin to treat the position as they would any job, i.e., to hold onto it at any cost. It does, after all, pay the mortgage, put food on the table, send the kids to school and buy the various necessities of life. Would you voluntarily give up your job? That, of course, is exactly the problem. Once again, it is not a job, it is paid service. When office-holders make the mental transition from service to livelihood, that's when we run into trouble.

Re-enter the special interest. In order to maintain their jobs, public servants must be re-elected and that takes money. Money for mailing brochues, for radio jingles, for billboards, for television, for staff and for travel. While no special interest asked for your vote when you were running for office, believe me they have been counting them since you were elected.

They have also been counting how frequently and how well you respond to their requests for "consultation" on pending legislation. A less than satisfactory ratio of favorable responses may find you facing a well-financed opponent in your re-election campaign, well-financed by the very interests to whom you failed to respond during your first term. Now, that's unfortunate, but it is fair. Why should they put their money into the campaign of an incumbent who does not support legislation important to their interest? If you want to call that buying votes, you may, but it doesn't make good sense. Would you invest money in someone who doesn't think the way you do on important issues?

If incumbents want to "keep a job," they will respond to powerful special interests by voting to support legislation helpful to those interests in order to keep them from too vigorously supporting a future opponent (after all, candidates can't count on us to contribute to their campaigns, can they?). However, when they make that decision, incumbents are no longer public servants. They are now simply people trying to keep their jobs.

Special-interest money buys access and, eventually, it buys favorable legislation. Big money can even foment a disaster. Charles Keating, president of Lincoln Savings, gave $1.3 million to five United States senators for their re-election campaigns and for other political causes. Nearly $850,000 was divided among Sen. Alan Cranston's campaign committee, his son's voter registration organization and the state democratic organization. In return, Sen. Cranston and the other four senators interferred with regulators trying to stop the criminal looting of Lincoln Savings by Keating and his cronies, looting which is expected to cost the taxpayers $2 billion. Sen. Cranston continued his efforts on behalf of the thrift's president even after he was informed of a pending federal indictment against Keating. Mr. Cranston said he was simply responding to the needs of a "constituent." What Sen. Cranston was actually doing was seeking money that would allow him to keep his "job.".

One of the senator's aides, during the Senate Ethics Committee hearings, remarked that her recommendation to the senator that he take advantage of his support for legislation favorable to Mr. Keating by asking for a $250,000 contribution did not indicate a "link" between what the senator did and the contributions. It is possible Sen. Cranston would have voted as he did regardless of the contribution, but taking the amount of money he did from a single interest distorts the concept of public service. Clearly the Senate was a job to Mr. Cranston...a job to be kept at any price.

Sens. Cranston, DeConcini, Riegle, McCain and Glenn did not create the S & L Crisis. The credit for that disaster lies indisputably at the doorstep of the Reagan administration and its deregulation mavens Donald Regan, David Stockman and George Bush (who, as head of a review panel, gave the system a clear bill of health in 1987 when it was collapsing).

Many democrats in Congress, however, took advantage of the "robber baron" atmosphere to enrich their own campaign coffers with only one goal in mind; perpetuation of their own "jobs." It is not a new story, but, given our need for responsible government and true public service, it is a sad one.

Volunteers needed for Pt. Sur Light

ARE YOU interested in California history? Do you like invigorating walks in the great outdoors? Do you believe our valuable historic sites should be made more accessible to the public?

e Point Sur Lightstation sits 361 feet above the surf on a large block of volcanic rock. Today, designated as a State Historic Landmark, Point Sur contains all the buildings necessary to maintain a self-sufficient, 19th century lighthouse facility. It is the only intact lightstation on the California coast that is open to the public.

Since 1986, tours of Point Sur State Historic Park have been given once or twice a weekend by volunteers. To expand the tours and accommodate more visitors, volunteers are needed.

If you are able to donate four hours, one day a month to help conduct a tour, plus four evening hours a month for staff meetings or special educational meetings, we would like you to consider joining our group.

If interested in this program, you are encouraged to attend a public tour prior to applying. For more information about the tours, call 625-4419.

Educational sessions will begin Feb. 4, 1991, and will continue weekly into May. Topics will include the natural and cultural history of Point Sur, CPR and First Aid, field trips to other lighthouses, and attendance at a Point Sur tour each month.

Applications can be obtained by contacting Beverly Ewoldsen, Big Sur District, 667-2315, or Point Sur Lightstation Docent Program, Pfeiffer Big Sur State Park No. 1, Big Sur, CA 93920.

County seeking persons to serve on advisory committees

THE MONTEREY County Planning Commission is seeking persons to serve on various area advisory committees. The purpose of the advisory committees is to advise the planning commission on various land use matters within specific geographic area.

To be considered for membership on an advisory committee, the requirements are to own property in the advisory committee area, be willing to devote a few hours each month to the committee's work, and have some interest, background, or knowledge of land use matters.

The cutoff date for written responses is Friday, Jan. 4, 1991. Please direct responses to Robert Slimmon, Jr., director, Monterey County Planning & Building Inspection Department, P.O. Box 1208, Salinas, CA 93902. For telephone questions, please call 755-5025.

The Advisory Committees which have openings are:

1. Highlands-Bixby Advisory Committee:
Generally bounded by the Carmel River on the north, the Pacific Ocean on the west, Bixby Creek on the south, and extending one to five miles east from the Pacific Ocean.

2. Lower Carmel Valley Advisory Committee:

COAST & COUNTRY

By Barbara March

One goose a lying

I ONCE challenged the creative limits of Ted, a florist friend of mind, and asked him to do a topiary Christmas goose for me. A sophisticated goose with a stately neck and round, plump body to stand at my front door like the ones you always see in the December issue of HG magazine.

I invited Ted to lunch and we looked at a picture from HG of an ivy-covered goose standing on the porch of a federalist mansion. There was no "how-to" with the photo, but Ted assured me he could do an ivy/sphagnum-coated goose, and it would take about a week.

The gander's place of honor on my stoop next to a poinsettia tree had been ready for two weeks when Ted, beaming with pride, walked up to the front door, goose under his arm.

I had hoped for too much. The Peter Principle prevailed and Ted's artistic triumph resembled a reject from a Duck's Unlimited decoy show. He had carved the goose out of styrofoam and covered it with a thin greenish-brown layer of moss; no ivy. Legs and webbed feet were too challenging, so my goose was in a permanent nesting position. More stocky than plump, he had a naive charm and delighted my holiday guests once they were told he was not a reclining Christmas pit bull.

Ted had labored long over my topiary goose, but Carmel-by-the-Sea Garden Club members whipped out over 120 fresh holiday table arrangements in two hours at their annual Christmas Workshop. Pine scent filled the air in the downstairs room at the Church of the Wayfarer as 45 Garden Club members selected boughs from piles of cuttings from Carmel gardens, added bows, ornaments and imagination and delivered the finished floral pieces to the Carmel Foundation, Carmel Library and Hospice by mid-afternoon.

Ted could have learned a few things from the Carmel-by-the-Sea Garden Club.

COME ALL YE FAITHFUL

Carmelites converged downtown Friday night to welcome Santa Claus to town. Carolers drew people out of shops and homes as they walked along city streets to gather at Carmel Plaza. The stage on Ocean Avenue was the setting for even more Christmas music as the Nick Williams Jr. Jazz Ensemble of Carmel and the Carmel High School Band played sing-along favorites.

The Carmel Business Association announced the winners of the business decorating contest. Carmel Art Association members acted as judges and included Bill Stone, Diana Hardy, Joe Tanous, Louise Tanous, Brenda Morrison, James Dowhower, Marcia Kuster Rider, Paul Hazdovac and Westel Nelson.

And the winners!

Windows and Doors category – Great Things Antiques took first, Hansel and Gretel second, and Gold Arts and Imports received third.

Decorated Interiors – First, La Playa Hotel; second, Carmel Cafe; third, Sundial Lodge.

Most Creative Decorating Scheme – Anton & Michel was voted number one, Vagabond's House number two, and Interior Traditions walked away with third.

Best Decorated Block – Dolores Street between Sixth and Seventh.

Her honor, Mayor Jean Grace lit the tree and joined in welcoming Santa Claus, who arrived on a fire engine.

SHARING OUR CARING

The Children's Services Center celebrated the holiday season at their annual open house and Christmas party at the Pacific Grove Senior Center on Dec. 10. Center volunteers decorated a large tree for the enjoyment of the local senior citizens.

Over 100 children attended with their foster or adoptive families. The children received Christmas gifts from members of the center's four auxiliary chapters. The newest chapter, Gabilan, was represented by the president, Marlene Quitney and board

PEEPS

"SAN Jose" Dave comes to Carmel twice a month, rain or shine. He says he likes it here because Carmel is civilized and cultured, like San Francisco used to be. A California original, Dave knows his cultural events. For example, he used to spend his summers in Yosemite in the '50s. One of Dave's five former wives sang the Indian Love Call for the happy Yosemite campers who gathered at twilight to see the spectacular fire falls. You might remember her singing at the Carmel Bach Festival.

MARGE Simpson of the KCBA Fox Simpson family was among the luminaries who made surprise appearances at the annual Pacific Grove "Conspiracy Party" hosted Dec. 14 by architects Bredthauer/Curran and artists and designers Mark Farina, Jeff Haynes, Lori Hughes, Kathryn Stark and Leah Van Vranken.

Strains of Blue Christmas filled the second-story studios as the crush of revelers, some wearing "I've seen Elvis" buttons, strained their necks over the crowd, hoping for a promised sighting of old swivel hips. Lucky Raiders fans spotted a paper-thin John Madden. John's cardboard likeness has been appearing regularly downstairs at Pacific Grove Hardware doing sales promos. The enterprising designers borrowed him from the new toilet display for the evening.

VICTORIANA

The Monterey County Symphony Guild's "Victorian Ball" offered an opportunity for Michelle Alway, Virginia Stanton, Dolores Gunia and others to wear vintage period gowns that had been handed down from mother to daughter for generations.

The Victorian theme continued in the decorations but thankfully, not the menu. Victorian dinner parties often ran for hours with double-digit courses. The symphony bill of fare was simple and up-to-date. French onion soup, Oriental spinach salad, beef tenderloin and a raspberry-chocolate meringue were accompanied by wines from Renaissance Winery, the official vintner of the Symphony Guild.

Dick La Salle played for the black-tie crowd and Marie-Therese Taylor surprised everyone with a French chanteuse version of C'est Si Bon.

A ROYAL NIGHT IN VIENNA

The Monterey Bay Symphony staged the first Red Cross Ball, "A Royal Night in Vienna" in the grand ballroom of the old Hotel Del Monte on the campus of the Naval Postgraduate School. The evening was dedicated to Douglas Graham, who passed away very recently.

Hosts and hostesses wearing red and white sashes escorted guests to their tables following a champagne reception with music provided by the Monterey Brass Quintet. Chef Wendy Brodie designed the traditional Viennese dinner menu. Courses included Fritattensuppe mit Schnittlauch, a dish every Austrian bride knows by heart. Simply stated, it's consomme with crepes and chives. The finishing touch was dessert — Sachertorte mit Schlagobers.

Highlights of the evening included a Viennese concert by Maestro Haymo Taeuber conducting the 20-piece chamber orchestra and featuring soprano Norma Jean Hodges.

DAR — 100 YEARS

The Daughters of the American Revolution are celebrating their centennial year and local members of the Commodore Sloat Chapter toasted the holidays and the DAR 100th birthday at their annual Christmas party held Dec. 18 at Monterey Peninsula Country Club. Entertainment Chairman Mrs. Gregg McKee arranged an afternoon performance by those local favorites, The Choraleers, whose program was titled, "A Variety of Christmas Music."

NEW YEAR'S EVE UPDATE

Resolving to give up nostalgia trips in 1991? You can have one last dose at the Monterey Sheraton this New Year's Eve. The Marvelettes, who immortalized hits like Don't Mess with Bill, Please Mr. Postman and Central 4-5789 (no it's not another restaurant in PG), are the star attractions of a party package that includes a four-course dinner, hats and horns, champagne and the traditional balloon drop.

HAPPY HOLIDAYS!

To all my readers — Merry Christmas and Happy New Year. Special holiday greetings to Margye Neswitz for the gracious welcome to "columnist biz" she extended to me four months ago. Cheers to all my supporters — especially the Minors, Ringers, and Eldon Dedini.

Seasons greetings to Barney and Elinor Laiolo. Yes, it's me, your long-lost cousin.

THIS & THAT

By Florence Mason

Aloha!

IT SEEMED like a gift from the gods.'' That is how Marion Engstrom felt about the job she accepted in January 1971.

As she looks forward to her retirement – officially Dec. 31 – she would use the same words today. Even though that gift spelled very long hours, almost daily challenges. In the last two decades she has played a leading role in the transformation of Sunset Center from ''white elephant,'' as it was known in 1971, to today's ''jewel.''

Marion, her husband George and their children, came to this area from Southern California in 1958, seeking clear air for the particular benefit of an asthmatic child. They found that clean air, and a lifestyle that suited them so well that they bought property in Carmel Valley and developed plans for a home. Then George Engstrom's change of jobs (in research labs), took the family to Sacramento for six years. But when her husband died, it was to this area that Marion and her children returned. They reduced the original house plans somewhat, and in June, 1968, they made the move that Marion still thinks of as ''the best move I ever made.''

Before returning to this area, Marion had achieved a degree in business administration. She worked for a mutual fund house, and then in human resources research at the Presidio. It was an ad in a local paper that sealed her next 20 years' connection – an ad for city clerk in Carmel. Instead of that, however, she was steered into a position at Sunset Center. With her abiding interest in things cultural, especially music and art history, ''it was the right thing at the right time,'' she now recalls.

Frank Riley was hired at the same time, as director. ''It's true that Sunset was known as a white elephant,'' Marion said. It was frequently vandalized and was in a state of disrepair, without heat or adequate lighting. When Riley retired in 1977, he had been responsible for the development of the Marjorie Evans Gallery and several other rooms in the complex. There were new heating and electrical systems and programming had been extended to include dance and ''lively'' arts.

Marion Engstrom, hired as a secretary, became busier and busier, adding the tasks of booking performers, handling rentals of the various facilities at Sunset and the Scout House, coordinating activities at Forest Theater, working on the many contracts involved. With the advent of Richard Tyler as director in 1977, the scope of cultural activities in Carmel expanded still further. Rooms were renovated, programming stretched to an average of 162 night programs a year. ''As many as 180,000 people pass through here each year!'' Marion said.

No doubt because the atmosphere is so friendly and welcoming, Sunset Center often functions much like a chamber of commerce for the city of Carmel. People gravitate there for information about cultural activities, and much more – and it is often Marion Engstrom to whom visitors are referred. And those 180,000 people (the figure comes from a marketing survey) flock to the city's cultural facilities for Bach, symphonies, musical society presentations, dance, the galleries, Friends of Photography, drama, and so on – the list is varied and seemingly endless.

There have been crises. Marion recalls a European musical group that had the misfortune to be involved in a bus accident the day before they were to perform here. Musicians were injured, their instruments damaged. It fell to the Sunset Center staff to post notices of the cancellation, get the news out to the press, make necessary phone calls and provide refunds. It was accomplished.

MARION ENGSTROM found herself quite adept with chopsticks during a 1986 trip to Hong Kong.

A personal crisis that Marion also recalls occurred when she was first working with Frank Riley. ''Inadvertently, I double-booked,'' she said, smiling. ''Fortunately, I discovered that about six weeks before the date, and was able to get one group to change dates. But I had a week of sleepless nights!''

Always resourceful, and always willing to do whatever needs to be done, Marion had to roll up the skirt of her long evening dress on one occasion, and grab a mop. That was because of a plumbing problem during one Bach Festival performance in the early 1970's. She tried to get a plumber but the one she called was inebriated. This was a problem that could not be set aside for Monday morning! So up came her skirts and Marion mopped bathroom floors after the intermission and again at the end of the performance. Her approach to such challenges is the same today: ''It's fun to be a jack-of-all-trades, and to meet whatever comes up. I keep turning my head around to see what else has to be done.''

This and That

So why is Marion Engstrom leaving this job that has meant so much to her and absorbed so much of her time and energy for 20 years?

"I had an original goal of working 20 years for the city, and I've met that goal. With Brian Donaghue on board, I see nothing but a healthy Sunset Center ahead, well-managed and busier than ever with new types of programs reflecting his background, especially because of his interest in expanding programs for children."

As it was the right time and the right place in 1971, so is it the right time now: "I need to get my own house in order."

And Marion turns to thank those who contributed to her satisfaction in the job, especially city staff. "There have been many changes in city staff over the years. When I started it ws smaller, we could be more of a family. That's harder now, but both Doug Schmitz (city administrator), and Greg D'Ambrosio (assistant city administrator), have been wonderful, so helpful and understanding. The city is in good hands."

The support she got from city staff during the past nine months when she was acting director was essential, Marion says. "I couldn't have done it without them." During that difficult period, she was acting director and she was still the assistant to the director, with all her usual tasks. She booked events, traveled to conferences, ran the office and oversaw all the weekend and evening events. With a small smile, she said: "It was a challenge and I feel I met it."

Hear City Administrator Schmitz: "She was outstanding, filling dual roles this year with her usual grace, charm and friendliness and with her dedication to the center and the arts; just what the city likes to have its employees project to the community. I'm sorry to see her leaving, but happy for her that she will have time to do the things she enjoys doing."

Echoes Greg D'Ambrosio: "She met the challenge and did the work with enthusiasm, great cheer, and love for the community.'

Well, Marion Engstrom doesn't own a rocking chair. She does have plans. "I'm going to do some redecorating. I would like to do some political work, too. And even work part-time! But first I have to catch up on what I neglected during the last nine months."

While her children were certainly not among things neglected, she does look forward to being able to be with them more. One son, Mark, died tragically in an automobile accident in 1977. The others are thriving, and have provided their mother with five grandchildren. Paul is a magazine editor in San Francisco, John an M.D. (neurologist and internist), at UCSF, and daughter Lynn an attorney in New Jersey. They prefer their mother's pies to cakes for birthdays and other occasions – yes, with candles. She'll have time for more cooking now and for traveling too. Greg D'Ambrosio comments on another of Marion's "cultural" interests: horticulture. "I can see her going off into the sunset with garden tools in hand. No gloves – because she likes the feel of the soil."

Marion Engstrom said that she didn't have any trepidation in accepting the role of acting director this year. "I was concerned about keeping Sunset Center and our other facilities on an even keel. Sunset Center is now the jewel in the crown of Carmel and I didn't want anything to happen to it."

How fortunate that Marion happened to the city of Carmel 20 years ago, and accepted each challenge that came her way. Hail and farewell, indeed, I'm sure she will find ways to go on contributing her time and talents to our city. She always has.

BUSINESS BEAT

By David Leland

Don't call him a has-Bean!

CARMEL AREA resident and former head of the Monterey Film Festival, David Bean, has joined forces with Monterey film distributor Kit Parker to serve as managing partner for Kit Parker Video.

Kit Parker Video is a new retail home video label specializing in mass interest titles at sell-through pricing.

"We have a proven product in the hands of industry veterans," said Bean, who served as president of Pacific Arts between 1981-85. "Most of our titles have already sold in the tens of thousands through telemarketing."

When with Pacific Arts, Bean oversaw the release of titles such as Elephant Parts and My Dinner With Andre.

From 1985 to the present he has been a business consultant in the entertainment industry whose clients have included Paul McCartney's MPL Communications and Leo Kottke's Round Wound Sound.

He also publishes the Personal Action Guide for the United Nations Environment Programme.

Monterey County Bank news... Jeffery Walbeck, senior VP, has been promoted to regional branch manager and will manage the bank's Carmel Rancho Branch.

Walbeck has been with the bank since mid-1989 and has 20 years of banking experience.

A graduate of Fresno State University, Walbeck has been involved in many community activities and currently serves as president of the Economic Development Corp. of Monterey County.

Also, Fred Rowden, president of the bank, has been elected to a two-year term on the board of directors of the Affordable Housing Corp. of Monterey County.

The Affordable Housing Corp. is a non-profit agency formed last year to purchase existing substandard, multi-familiy rental units to remodel as low-cost housing.

And finally, but not least, Joan Rankin has been selected by the directors and officers of the bank as employee of the year for 1990.

Rankin serves as a secretary in the loan department of the bank's Monterey Office.

ANDREW WHITACRE has been appointed sales manager of Carmel Valley Ranch Resort. Since joining the resort a year ago, Whitacre has been involved in guest services and most recently served as conference services manager. In his new position he will be involved with corporate sales in the Silicon Valley and Southern California. (Photo courtesy of Carmel Valley Ranch Resort.)

SUSAN RACANELLI has been named Director of Sales for La Playa Hotel in Carmel.

Real estate tidbit... Robin Snider, previously with Henrietta Realty, has joined the Coldwell Banker Residential real estate office in Carmel.

Snider attended Cazenovia College in New York and earned her license in 1989. She specializes in residential and land sales.

More banking news... First National Bank of Monterey County has announced the appointment of Joan Siebert-Brunn to the position of vice president, managing officer for the new Carmel Valley office scheduled for a June opening.

Siebert-Brunn comes to First National with more than 23 years of experience with Security Pacific Bank. She most recently served as vice president and manager of Security Pacific's Monterey branch.

The gods would be proud... Greek Taverna – formerly the Stickey Wicket – has opened its doors, featuring Greek cuisine to suit the tastebuds of the adventureous and not-so adventureous food lover.

Owner and chef Evangelos Kazantizides brings with him 20 years of experience in the food-service industry.

The Greek Taverna, located on Dolores Street a few steps south of Ocean, offers daily lunch and dinner specials in addition to its extensive menu. A sampling includes moussaka, spinach pie, stuffed vine leaves and Greek salad.

La Playa news... Susan Racanelli has been named director of sales for La Playa Hotel.

Her responsibilities include developing and carrying out the hotel's marketing program, managing the sales and catering staffs and overseeing advertising, promotion and public relations activities.

Racenelli has more than nine years of marketing and management experience as well as extensive knowledge of the area.

Before joining La Playa, she was director of sales for the Inns of Monterey, a group of three luxury hotels.

County Bank news...MCB has announced that Jeffery Walbeck, senior VP, has been promoted to regional branch manager and will manage the bank's Carmel Rancho Branch.

PLANNING DEPARTMENT TO HOLD HOUSING WORKSHOP

Frank Brunings, County Housing Coordinator announced that the Planning and Building Inspection Department will hold the second in a series of public workshops addressing county housing needs, problems and potential solutions. The workshop will be held at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 18, in the Community Room at the "Crossroads" Shopping Center in Carmel Valley. Public comments will be used to help the department in investigating housing needs and devise potential housing solutions to be included in the update of the Housing Element of the General Plan.

BANK OF AMERICA AND USMC TEAM UP IN TOYS FOR TOTS

Bank of America will team up with the United States Marine Corps Reserve to support the annual Toys for Tots campaign.

As an official sponsor of the Corps' 43rd annual Toys for Tots program, Bank of America will open its more than 825 California branches as collection sites for toys, ensuring that hundreds of thousands of needy youngsters will not be disappointed on Christmas morning.

Beginning immediately, anyone can donate toys at any Bank of America branch. All toys must be new and not gift-wrapped. On Dec. 21, the 23 USMC Reserve units in California will make the final pickup of toys from all collection sites. The final phase – distribution of toys – is conducted under the auspices of recognized social welfare agencies.

"Bank of America is proud to participate in this outstanding program which has brought joy to millions of needy children," said Rosie McHale, manager of Bank of America's Carmel Center Branch. "We hope to encourage large numbers of people to join in the spirit of giving, and have provided convenient dropoff sites for their toy contributions."

CONCERNED SENIORS TO MEET DEC. 20

The Concerned Senior Citizens Monterey Peninsula Club will hold its Christmas party at 1:30 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 20 in the Community Room of the Monterey Public Library, 625 Pacific St., Monterey.

Entertainment will include Christmas carols by Monterey High School Chamber Choir under director George Bowers, a Christmas story by Joann Branson, exchange of gifts, and refreshments. For more information, call 375-4472.

COMMUNITY CHRISTMAS DINNER SCHEDULED

The Community Holiday Dinner Committee announces the Fifth Annual Christmas Dinner to be held in the Monterey Room at the Monterey Fairgrounds on Dec. 25, Christmas Day.

The buffet is from noon until 4 p.m. A traditional Christmas dinner with all the trimmings is prepared, at no charge and is open to the public.

As is our tradition, families and individuals can come with traditional dishes for themselves and to share with others. Flatware and plates may also be brought.

There will be live music, Santa Claus and games for the children. This all day event, for the members of the Monterey Peninsula, visitors, military, lonely, hungry, and needy, is an opportunity for the whole peninsula family to join together in a celebration of Christmas.

Since we are an all-volunteer organization, we rely on volunteers and donatios in order to provide our dinner. Please contact committee members at one of these numbers: 394-4445, 655-3437, and 659-5448.

AFFORDABLE HOUSING CORP. ELECTS NEW BOARD MEMBERS

The newest member of the Board of Directors of the Affordable Housing Corporation of Monterey County is Fred Rowden, president of Monterey County Bank. Rowden was elected to serve a two-year term at the November meeting. Also elected this year were; Richard Hawkins, CPA of Monterey; Sharon Oliveira of Oliveira Construction in Salinas; Pete Maturino, president of the Independent Labor Union in Salinas, and Brian Call, attorney with the firm of Bohnen, Rosenthal, Call & Mallett in Monterey.

The Affordable Housing Corporation is a nonprofit, public benefit housing development corporation that was formed last year to purchase existing substandard, multi-family rental units, make the needed repairs and remodel them to be preserved for low-income families. The corporation is currently looking for properties in the unincorporated areas of Monterey County in order to access a special state funding source that has been set aside to finance projects of this type in rural areas. This concept is being used in other parts of the state very successfully. It is essentially a partnership of private expertise and public, as well as private, financing that will purchase and maintain permanent low-cost housing.

The Affordable Housing Corporation operates countywide and received its first grant from the Bank of American Foundation. Several local businesses and individuals have made contributions that will assist in the hiring of staff for the coming year. The new

OBITUARIES

Allen T. Ratcliffe

Allen Thompson Ratcliffe, a retired salesman, died Dec. 6 at Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula of an apparent heart attack. He was 69.

Mr. Ratcliffe, who was born Jan. 23, 1921, in Wisconsin, lived in Carmel for 15 years. He was well-known in the Carmel area. He worked at concert events at Sunset Center for many years and often helped out at the Carmel Inn for Seniors, where he lived.

He is survived by two sons, Allen Jr. of Concord and Doug of Denver, Colo.; a daughter, Judith Ann Cassis of Wheaton, Ill., and a brother, John of Carmel.

The family suggests that any memorial contributions may be made to the donor's favorite charity.

Allan Herbert Taylor

Allan Herbert Taylor, a Carmel native and a senior research engineer for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, died at his Newport News, Va., home Dec. 5, the victim of a homicide. He was 51.

Police said he was shot to death during an apparent attempted burglary.

Born Jan. 14, 1939, he was a 1963 graduate of California Polytechnic Institute at San Luis Obisbo and did graduate work at Georgia Institute of Technology.

Following graduation, Taylor worked for Lockheed Corp. in California and Georgia and TV/Vought Aerospace in Virginia. He had been with NASA since 1981.

He was an avid amateur race car driver and had been awarded many patents for his inventions.

Taylor was a member of the Sports Car Club of America, the American Society of Metals, and the National Association of Aeronautics and Astronautics.

He once served on the executive council of the Peninsula Council of the Boy Scouts of America and had been committee chairman of Boy Scout Troop 43 in Newport News.

Taylor is survived by his wife, Patricia; a son, Robert, of Newport News; his mother, Margaret Thatcher, and two sisters, Louise McAlister and Danna Stanley, all of Jackson, Miss., and a brother, Tyrone of Santa Cruz.

Virginia K. Klemme

Virginia Knobelock Klemme, a lifelong collector of art who made generous donations to the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art, died Dec. 4 at her Carmel home. She was 92.

Born on March 8, 1898, in Illinois, she came to Monterey County 30 years ago.

There are no survivors. At Ms. Klemme's request, no services will be held.

Cremation and inurnment will take place at El Carmelo Cemetery under the direction of the Mission Mortuary.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art and the Monterey History and Art Association.

Alice T. Varien

Alice T. Varien, a Carmel Valley native who was an early sweetheart of Salinas' California Rodeo, died Nov. 7 at her home in Waldron, Ark. She was 92.

Mrs. Varien was born on Aug. 17, 1898, to pioneer Carmel Valley ranchers Luigi Piazzoni and Tomasa Fiesta Majares.

She worked in the canneries on Monterey's Cannery Row and was the sweetheart of the rodeo in 1917. She moved to Arkansas in July of this year.

Surviving are three daughters, Helen Brown of Waldron, Ark., Anita Kavanagh of Pacific Grove and Alice McNulty of Pleasanton; two sons, James of Marina and Charles of Santa Clara; 19 grandchildren; 36 great-grandchildren; and four great-great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Varien's husband, Charlie died in 1967.

Funeral services have been held in Arkansas.

Farrar Pat Parker

Farrar Pat Parker, of Pebble Beach died Dec. 2 at Beverly Manor Convalescent Hospital. She was 97.

Born on Sept. 6, 1893, in Santa Ana, Texas, Mrs. Parker lived in Dallas until 1936, then moved to Long Beach, where she lived before moving to Pebble Beach in 1974.

She was a member of the Order of the Eastern Star and the First Presbyterian Church. She was also an active member of the Carmel Foundation.

Surviving are two daughters, Jean Murphy of Pebble Beach and Au Verne Giovanazzi of El Monte; five grandchildren; eight great-grandchildren; and five great-great grandchildren.

Funeral services were held Dec. 7 in the chapel of Wesminster Cemetery, Long Beach.

The family suggests that any contributions be sent to the Carmel Foundation.

Albert Bottemanne

Albert Martinus Bottemanne of Carmel, a retired lieutenant colonel with the Royal Dutch Army, died Dec. 6 of a heart ailment. He was 56.

Mr. Bottemanne was born on Sept. 15, 1934, in Enschede, the Netherlands, and lived in Carmel for the last seven years. He was with the Dutch Army for 31 years until his retirement and was a certified life underwriter with New York Life Insurance Co.

From 1970 to 1974, he was assistant military attache in the Netherlands Embassy at Washington, D.C., and in 1979 was knighted to the rank of officer to the Royal House of Orange by the queen of the Netherlands.

While in New York Life, Mr. Bottemanne was named twice to the Million Dollar Round Table and was named rookie and agent of the year at the Salinas office.

He was a past deacon and member of Carmel Presbyterian Church and a member of the Monterey Bay Life Underwriters Association. He formerly served on the Monterey County Homeless Task Force.

He is survived by his wife, Karen; two daughters, Maaike and Alexandra, both of Carmel; two sons, Peter of Carpenteria and Albert of Arnhem, the Netherlands; his stepmother, Anna Bottemanne of Hilversum, the Netherlands; and a brother, Fritz of Amsterdam.

Memorial services were held Dec. 9 at Carmel Presbyterian Church. Cremation will take place at the Little Chapel by-the-Sea. The Paul Mortuary is in charge of arrangements.

The family suggests that any memorial contributions be sent to the Carmel Presbyterian Church Deacon's Homeless Fund or to the American Heart Association.

Douglas Graham

Douglas Adrain Graham of Carmel, a prominent businessman who was active in community affairs, died of cardiac failure Dec. 4 at Stanford Medical Center. He was 65.

A 36-year resident of the peninsula, Mr. Graham was owner of Graham Buick Co. for 29 years before selling it in May 1982.

"He loved the Monterey Peninsula. He loved where he lived. He loved the community," said Ernie Singleton of Carmel, a longtime Chevrolet dealer on the peninsula.

Calling him "one of the pioneers," Singleton said that Mr. Graham had the foresight to option a piece of property to Singleton's Roller Chevrolet to help "strengthen and fill out" the Monterey Peninsula Auto Center in Seaside.

"So many people knew Doug and could depend on his help, which he gave willingly," Singleton said.

"He was well-read, well-studied and he had many interests and much curiosity," he said. "Doug really liked people."

Mr. Graham was born on Oct. 15, 1925, in Portland, Ore. He was a graduate of Stanford University.

Active in community affairs, he was a founding member of the Pacheco Men's Athletic Club and originator of the Monterey Visitors and Convention Bureau.

He was a member of the Monterey Peninsula Chamber of Commerce, Monterey Peninsula Country Club, Monterey Rotary Club and the Beach and Tennis Club in Pebble Beach. He was also a member of Carmel Presbyterian Church and a past president of the Scottish Society of the Monterey Peninsula.

Mr. Graham served in the U.S. Navy during World War II as a lieutenant in the amphibious forces in the Asian-Pacific theater. He was awarded a Purple Heart and a Victory Medal.

A longtime supporter of Stanford University athletics, Mr. Graham was the local director of the Buck Club, which supports Stanford football. He often played host to Stanford athletes and coaches on the peninsula and was a frequent "tailgate host" at Stanford football games.

Survivors include his wife, Mary Margaret; two daughters, Roberta of Seaside and Lisa of Marina; two sons, Bruce and Bryan, both of Carmel; his mother, Mrs. Adrian B. Graham of Portland, Ore.' and three grandchildren. His brother, Clark, died in 1979.

Funeral services were held Dec. 7 at Carmel Presbyterian Church. Burial will take place later in the family plot in Portland.

The Paul Mortuary is in charge of arrangements.

HOSPICE STILL DEDICATING LIGHTS FOR TREE OF LIFE

As a holiday tribute, it is still possible to dedicate a light in memory or in honor of someone for the Hospice of the Central Coast Tree of Life, which shines atop the Sheraton Monterey each night during December.

More than 2,000 white lights, each representing a gift of $15 or more to Hospice's patient care program, have already been dedicated in someone's name.

Persons or families being honored receive a Tree of Life gift card and their names are entered into the Memory Book, which remains on display in the lobby of the Sheraton throughout the holidays.

The Tree of Life Program raises approximately $50,000 each year for Hospice care, which emphasizes dignity and quality of life for patients who have a life threatening illness.

To dedicate a light, send a check to Hospice of the Central Coast, P.O. Box 2480, Monterey, CA 93942, or call 372-6565. Enclose a note with your check indicating the name and address of the individual or family being honored.

BRIDGE RESULTS ANNOUNCED

Almost three full masterpoints were won by the highest scorers at Dec. 10's duplicate bridge game held at Sunset Center.

Carmel Community Bridge holds a membership game – sponsored by American Contract Bridge League – once a year, and extra masterpoints are awarded to the winners. Florence Luckett, who is a lifemaster, and Phyllis Sokol, who needs only a few more points to achieve the title of lifemaster, won first place overall.

Second place was won by Hugh and Phyllis Steven; third place by Linda Wright and Bob Hansen; fourth place was tied by Phil Pratt and Beryl Scott, and Marvin Bechtel and Alma Connell. Lois Hanger and O.W. Seversen placed second in their section.

Carmel Community Bridge welcomes all bridge players to their games at 1 p.m. on Mondays. Call 625-4307 for information. No games on Dec. 24 and Dec. 31.

FATHER FARRELL'S WISDOM

Share your joy

From the Dec. 23, 1982
Carmel Pine Cone

C.S. Lewis, the Anglican spiritual writer, said: "Joy is the serious business of heaven." However as we prepare for Christmas the church tells us that joy is also the serious business of earth. "Gaudate domino iterum dico gaudate. Rejoice in the Lord always, again I say rejoice."

As we look at the world we see wars, pestilence, famine, inflation and unemployment. We say: "What are these religious pollyanas asking of us?" However there is joy that transcends world events, personal problems and family tragedies.

It can not be brought nor does it come from Christmas celebrating. But rather it is something we find in bringing it to others. It comes from sharing, from all the generous and thoughtful acts we do to make the lives of others happier and more full of love.

Mark Twain said: "Grief can take care of itself. To get full value out of joy we have to have someone to share it with."

Oh Lord, spare us from ever becoming a "gloomy Gus," for that means we are unable to cope with the present nor hope for the future. When we grab thy fatherly hand we can walk with joy anywhere and always. Oh Lord, help us to do just that this Christmas and throughout 1983.

Finally, a notorious gossip told me that Rotarians and Rotary Anns are kind and thoughtful to everyone but to each other. I think this is a lie and I have phoned Melvin Belli to sue the shrew for deformation of character.

Amen.

Is brotherhood out of style?

Your children are invited to learn what the Bible teaches about the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man in the Christian Science Sunday School.

Any young person up to the age of twenty is welcome to visit or enroll.

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

Bama, a remote county in China near Vietnam, is attracting attention because of the longevity of its people — healthy, alert centenarians, men and women in their nineties "with the blood pressure of 40-year-olds," and octogenarians planting and harvesting rice and maize. Demographers found 62 centenarians, one of them a woman who claims 130 years and still does her housework and cooking.

A thin booklet, bearing the name of Stanley Cryor, tells its stories succinctly: "I cherish the memories of my boyhood at the turn of the century. I remember horses and buggies on dusty streets; sleighbells in winter. The old brick house in Dixon, Ill., which my father rented for $12 a month; its oil lamps; its wood stove in the kitchen..." Cryor, now 95, is a legend in Philadelphia newspaper circles as an editor par excellence. He retired in 1965 and first wrote the booklet in 1979 for circulation among family and friends, and he has updated it several times since.

FRANK CATALANO HONORED BY LIONS CLUBS

At a joint Christmas party at the Monterey Elks Club sponsored by three Carmel Lions Clubs (Carmel Host, Mission 200 and Carmel Rancho), Frank Catalano was presented with a "Life Membership in Lions Clubs International." Long-time Lion and Elk Dick Searle made the presentation. The Lions Zone Chairman Bill Boone and Past President Harley Wood served as organizers and master of ceremonies.

Catalano, a retired bank official, has been a Lion for 38 years, and served in eight different Lions Clubs in positions of club president (five times), zone chairman (four times), deputy district governor (four times), district extension chairman (three times) and chairman of several other cabinet committees. He was credited with bringing 69 new members into Lionism and was awarded the A.J. Robinson Gold Medallion. He was chosen Lion of the Year many times in five of the eight Lions Clubs.

Searle, while presenting the award, pointed out that Frank Catalano has served the Boy Scouts of America (40 years volunteer service, earning the Certificate of Merit, the Scouter's Key and the Silver Beaver), and the Bing Crosby and AT&T Pebble Beach Pro-Ams (20 years).

TOP STATE REALTORS ATTEND CARMEL, MONTEREY, REALTOR INSTALLATION

Top leadership of the California Association of Realtors (CAR) turned out Dec. 8 to attend the installation of officers for the Carmel and Monterey Peninsula Boards of Realtors.

The event took place at a gala dinner-dance held in the San Carlos Ballroom of the Monterey Sheraton Hotel. More than 400 realtors and their guests attended.

Presiding at the installation ceremony was Mack Powell, 1991 president of the CAR. Also attending for the CAR were President-Elect Charles (Chuck) Lamb; Treasurer Walt McDonald; and Executive Vice-President Joel Singer.

It was the first time that all the top CAR leadership ever attended a local realtor installation.

Powell installed as president of Carmel Board of Realtors L.H. (Buck) Bemis of Cornish & Carey. Bemis, who served as CBR president in 1974-75, succeeds George Fusco of Del Monte Realty.

As president of the Monterey Peninsula Board, Powell installed Steven Marino of By the Bay Realty. Marino succeeds Robert Russell.

Other officers of the Carmel Board; President-Elect Norma D'Isidoro, Del Monte Realty; Secretary-Treasurer R.J. Strong Jr. of Coldwell Banker; and directors Lee Canonico, Pamela de Leon, George Fusco, Charles MacLaughlin, Joseph Rousso, Stephen Poohar, Maria Wahl, and Robert Wolvsky.

Other officers of the Monterey Peninsula Board: President-Elect Richard Stebbins of Harbor Realty; Treasurer Terry Wecker of Heritage Real Estate; Secretary Tom Rowley of Seven Cities by the Sea; and directors Edward Ciliberti, Sharon Gedryn, Lynda Nichols, Robert Russell, John Savory, Toni Shankle, and Trish Trovato.

Virginia E. Williams is executive vice-president of the Carmel Board of Realtors, and Claudia Rico is executive officer of the Monterey Peninsula Board.

"The fact that the leadership of the CAR attended the joint installation shows the importance these men attach to the two boards of realtors on the peninsula," said out-going CBR president Fusco.

Outgoing MPBR president Russell said the attendance of the leadership "was a tribute to significant presence of peninsula realtors in CAR during the years, most notably in chairing and serving on CAR's most important committees."

'Speaking poet' Ric Masten will present free concert for kids

RIC MASTEN will give a concert of poetry-in-song for children at 11 a.m. Saturday, Dec. 22 at Thunderbird for Kids. Admission is free.

Masten will perform a selection of poems and song lyrics from Notice Me. A book for "parents, students, faculty and friends."

One reviewer stated, "It has been said that Ric Masten is something like a stand-up comic, something like a seat-of-the-pants philosopher and something like a folksinger. A sort of Will Rogers, Ogden Nash and Pete Seeger all rolled into one." This book is a collection of his writings, raps and song lyrics.

Masten writes for every age group, from kindergarten to teenagers to adults. He has performed in hundreds of schools, and has given readings, concerts and workshops throughout the country. His work addresses the lonliness and joy everyone, of all ages, experience.

Masten says his favorite audience is made up of people who would normally regard an hour with a poet as "cruel and unusual punishment." His readings reflect a spontaneity that makes every program different and gives the audience the sense of being engaged in conversation rather than watching a one-man show.

Thunderbird for Kids is located in The Barnyard off Highway 1 and Carmel Valley Road. For more information, call 624-4995.

ARTS & LEISURE

Star chefs hone culinary skills for March of Dimes Gourmet Gala

SOME OF the most prestigious names in food and wine have agreed to judge the dishes prepared by celebrity chefs at the 1991 March of Dimes Gourmet Gala, scheduled for Jan. 26 at the Sheraton Monterey Hotel.

This year's judging team includes Bert Cutino, co-owner of the award-winning Sardine Factory restaurant in Monterey and Certified Executive Chef member of the American Academy of Chefs; design and cookbook author Lee Bailey; James Berrien, executive vice president of American Express Publishing Corp.; Don Ferch, owner, Contemporary Catering in Monterey; Joachim Splichal, owner-chef of the acclaimed Patina Restaurant in Hollywood; Rene Verdon, former executive chef at the White House under President John F. Kennedy.

Theme of the sixth annual event is "March of Times – Dining Through the Decades," which has local interior designers and architects creating kitchen environments inspired by design styles from the decades of the 20th century for this year's celebrity chefs.

Lined up so far to present their favorite recipes are actors Elinor Donahue, who is serving as chairman emeritus with her husband Harry Ackerman, Jane Wyatt, Ruth Buzzi and JoAnne Worley; supermodel Allison Eastwood and her mother Maggie; race car driver Jon Beekhuis, former senator from Alaska, Mike Gravel and industrialist Finis Conner.

Actor Bill Beckley of Dynasty will serve as master of ceremonies.

Brooke Shields, who was a celebrity chef last year, is serving as honorary co-chairman with her mother Teri.

The March of Dimes Gourmet Gala, which in 1990 netted $50,000 for March of Dimes' research and services, puts an eclectic collection of celebrity cooks into 12 environments created by local interior designers and architects.

During a cocktail reception provided by the Monterey Peninsula's top restaurants and wineries, the traditionally sell-out (at $150 per person), crowd observes the chefs as they cook and the judges as they judge. Dinner – the celebrity recipes as prepared in larger quantities in the Sheraton Monterey kitchen – and dancing follow, along with a silent auction.

The Nunes Co., a Salinas-based agriculture firm, is the major underwriter of this year's gala. Other gala sponsors include Country Home Care; Mills Distributing Co.; Monterey Rolls Royce; Salyer American; Household Credit Services Inc.; Saks Fifth Avenue; Manny Lawrence Sales Inc.; Pebble Beach Co.; Dory Urcis; Rykoff-Sexton Inc.; elan at The Lodge and elan at Spanish Bay; Whittakers and Bib 'N' Tucker.

Artie Early and Mark Lupo are co-chairpersons of the gala. Their steering committee includes Bill Cater, development; Jerry Welling, kitchen design; Tia Gindick, publicity; Pat Gentry and Tracy Gentry, cooking; Carol Benton, entertainment; Dory Urcis, theme; Diane Belanger, printing; Jennifer Lupo, invitations; Juliann Podesta, silent auction.

Now in its 52nd year, the March of Dimes is a partnership of volunteers and professionals which has pioneered programs that include diagnosis and treatment of babies before and after birth, genetic counseling, and early and regular prenatal care to prevent birth defects.

Solo pianist George Winston will perform concert at Sunset Center

SOLO PIANIST George Winston brings his "Winter Show" to Sunset Center Theater in Carmel at 8 p.m. Friday, Dec. 4.

The proceeds from this concert will benefit Project Outreach, a grassroots organization providing food, shelter, clothing and job services to homeless families and families in transition.

Join Winston in support of Alliance on Aging Food Bank by bringing a can of food to the concert. There will be collection baskets at the entrances.

Winston is one of the foremost so-called "New Age" artists to reach popular and commercial success in the late 1980s, primarily through his recordings with the prestigious Windham Hill label, which he helped found.

In concert, Winston presents two different shows, the "Summer Show" and the "Winter Show," which he alternates each time he plays a city. Each show is centered around a seasonal theme and feaures both recorded and unrecorded pieces. Winston performed his "Summer Show" at the Sunset Center last June to a sold-out house.

Winston performs his own brand of pop instrumental music consisting of "hot" music (R&B/blues/rock/standards), as well as the melodic music that comprises most of his recorded output. The style of these pieces, while broadly categorized as "New Age," is often described as "rural folk piano."

Currently, Winston is concentrating on the live performance as well as studying the playing of the late R&B solo pianist James Booker and R&B/jazz pianist Henry Butler. He is also recording some of the musicians who have inspired him for many years on his own Dancing Cat Records label. A subsidiary label, Hawaiian Slack Key Guitar Records, was recently started to record slack key artists playing the traditional solo fingerpicking styles unique to the Hawaiian Islands.

Tickets for Winston's show are $16 for reserved seating and are available through Center Stage Ticketing at 649-5561. For more information on Project Outreach programs, call Charles Glick at 899-HOPE.

The Sunset Center Theater is located at San Carlos and Ninth in Carmel.

Chanticleer to sing at Mission

CHANTICLEER, THE acclaimed all-male a cappella vocal ensemble, launches this year's holiday season with Christmas concerts at churches and missions throughout California, including Carmel Mission.

The Carmel performance is scheduled for 8 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 19 at the Carmel Mission.

The 12-member group summons the holiday festivities with programs laced with many of the traditional as well as contemporary selections which are featured on their latest CD recording, Our Heart's Joy – A Chanticleer Christmas on Chanticleer Records.

The ensemble will fill the churches and missions, which besides Carmel will include St. Ignatius Church in San Francisco and Santa Clara Mission, with a repertoire that includes renditions of Jean Mouton's Ave Maria...Virgo serena, Michael Praetorius' In dulci jubilo, and Charles Ives' A Christmas Carol.

The program will also feature a host of holiday arrangements by Chanticleer's own music director, Joseph Jennings, including his inspirational versions of O Come, O Come Emmanuel, O Holy Night and a medley of Christmas spirituals.

Chanticleer was founded in 1978 by Louis Botto and started with a single performance in San Francisco's Mission Dolores. The ensemble went on to win acclaim with performances at the 18th International Fortnight of Music Festival in Bruges, the International Josquin symposium in Cologne, the Voices Festival in Holland and the Salzburg Festival in Austria.

Today Chanticleer performs more than 80 concerts each season in the U.S. and Europe and frequently appears on such radio programs as "St. Paul Sunday Morning," "A Prairie Home Companion," "All Things Considered," and "West Coast Weekend."

The group has eight recordings, including three new recordings this year, Our Heart's Joy; Where the Sun Will Never Go Down, an album devoted to spirituals and traditional gospel music; and a recording of new American choral music featuring works by Ned Rorem, Steven Sametz, Cary John Franklin, and Allen Shearer.

"The light, flowing quality of Chanticleer's phrasing and their fascinating array of subtly changing tone colors made their program a very special listening experience," wrote a critic for the Houston Post.

Tickets are available at all BASS outlets, Do Re Mi in The Barnyard, Carmel (625-1229) and Carmel Plaza (625-5238); Abinante's Music (372-5893); and Center Stage Ticketing (649-5561).

ACCLAIMED ALL-MALE a cappella vocal ensemble Chanticleer launches the holiday season with a special performance at 8 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 19 at the Carmel Mission Basilica. The 12-member group from San Francisco summons the holiday festivities with a program laced with traditional as well as contemporary Christmas selections featured in their latest release Our Heart's Joy – A Chanticleer Christmas.

GroveMont to celebrate new year with champagne and 'Tomfoolery'

Tomfoolery, GROVEMONT Theater's hit musical revue based on the words and lyrics of social satirist Tom Lehrer, will open The Monterey Playhouse, new home of GroveMont Theater, with a New Year's Weekend Party Extravaganza, Thursday, Dec. 27 through Monday, Dec. 31, closing with a New Year's Eve Champagne Gala, at the new facility, 425 Washington St., just off Franklin Street in Monterey.

The production has been directed by GroveMont founder and executive director Stephen Moorer, whose recent productions of Tomfoolery, A Midsummer Night's Dream and Daddy's Dying, Who's Got the Will received multiple recognitions at the Monterey County Theater Alliance's version of the Tony's, "The BARBS."

"The goals for this unique five-day party are twofold," Moorer said. "First, we'll try to raise $15,000 toward our renovation fund. Second, we want to introduce our new theater to all our patrons and supporters in the most festive way possible. What better time than New Year's weekend?"

The cast of Tomfoolery, which was recognized with a 1990 ensemble musical BARB by the theater alliance, features Jim Sutty, Kelly Alexander, Eleanor Wylde and Kevin Hanstick. Musicalk accompaniment is by Barbara Souza. The show includes such well-known Lehrer numbers as The Vatican Rag, Poisoning Pigeons in the Park and I Got It From Agnes. The production comes to the Monterey Playhouse following its sold-out October run at the GroveMont Theater Arts Center in New Monterey.

Tomfoolery will play five nights only, Thursday, Dec. 27-30 at 8 p.m. and Monday, Dec. 31 at 9 p.m. Ticket prices Thursday through Sunday are $20 single or $35 for two, including intermission appetizers and refreshments including beer and wine.

Ticket prices for the New Year's Eve Gala are $50 single, $90 for two and includes pre-show reception, after-show champagne buffet and dancing.

For reservations, call the GroveMont box office at 649-6852; for advance tickets, call Center Stage Ticketing at 649-5561.

Get a front-row seat during annual whale watching

YOU'LL HAVE a front-row seat with expert commentary when you watch the annual migration of gray whales at the Monterey Bay Aquarium. Here are some tips for the whale watcher.

Between November and April each year, an estimated 15,000 to 20,000 gray whales (Eschrichtius robustus pass Monterey Bay on their 12,000-mile journey from Alaska to Baja California and back. Frequently, these great whales swim into the bay itself, within easy sight of shore.

Gray whales are not the only animals you'll see. Risso's dolphins and common dolphins can occasionally be spotted from the aquarium.

Sea otters, local residents throughout the year, are found in greater numbers in sheltered areas during the winter. Sea lions and harbor seals are here, too, as are winter birds like colorful surf scoters and many species of grebes.

The oceanfront aquarium, on Monterey's Cannery Row, is an ideal site for watching whales and other wildlife.

Outdoor decks up to three stories high offer a crow's-nest view. And there are telescopes for visitors to use as they scan the horizon for a spout.

Visitors are alerted to significant sightings, and volunteer aquarium guides are often out on the decks by telescopes to help visitors find the migrating mammals.

Around the bay, the Davenport Bluffs by Highway 1 north of Santa Cruz afford excellent ocean views. At the bay's lower end, whales can be sighted from the shore between Monterey Harbor and Carmel. Point Pinos and Asilomar State Beach in Pacific Grove are popular whale-watching sites.

South of Monterey Bay, Point Lobos State Reserve offers a haven for whale-watchers. Soberanes Point in Garrapata State Park (at the north end of the Big Sur coast), Point Sur and Andrew Molera State Park are also excellent. Many parks have ranger-led whale-watching walks.

Whale-watching boat trips are available from both Monterey and Santa Cruz. And the aquarium sponsors its own naturalist-led boat trips for members each weekend in January.

The southbound gray whale migration peaks in early January; northbound whales are at their most plentiful during the first week of March.

When weighing precious stones, there are about 142 carats in an ounce.

Nick Williams ensemble to play at Third Thursday Jazz Series

NICK WILLIAMS will ring in the holiday season with a little jazz at the next Third Thursday Jazz Series, set for 8 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 20 at the Vista Lobos Room at Vista Lobos Park, Third and Torres in Carmel.

The concert will feature 4-year-old singing sensation Angelica Williams and the Nick Williams Jr. Jazz Ensemble. An "All-Pro Jam" will include Dave Kempton on piano, Steve Bernstein on bass, Bob Blankenship on drums, as well as Nick Williams on flute, clarinet, sax and bass, and Leslie Williams on vocals.

The concert series is sponsored by Nick Williams Music of Carmel and the Carmel Recreation Department. Admission is free. For more information or to make reservations, call 626-9150.

Ratz or the Ballad of Maxfield Mouse

The MPC Theatre Company is currently presenting the world premiere of James Mairs' musical fantasy Ratz or the Ballad of Maxfield Mouse, in the Main Stage Theater at Monterey Peninsula College.

Based on the story, The City Mouse and the Country Mouse, the production has a cast of 31 featuring Edward Griggs as Maxfield Mouse, Nicole Hostetler as Roxy, Michael Robbins as Chester Fieldmouse, Mary-Ann Lucido as Toni Townmouse, Dean Winston as Cosmo Mouse, and C. Patrick Spike as Capt. Wiley. Kent Carlson will play Capt. Wiley for Saturday matinees.

Tom McKenzie is directing the production, musical direction is by Barney Hulse and Laura Akard has choreographed the show.

The play is approximately one hour and 10 minutes in length and is suitable for children 4 years of age and older. Parents are requested not to bring infants or toddlers to the performance.

The play is presented at 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays, with 2 p.m. matinees on Saturdays and Sundays through Dec. 30.

Admission is $9 general; $7 for students/military/seniors. There is a special price of $1 for children under 13 when accompanied by a general admission ticket holder. Otherwise, admission for children 12 and younger is $4.50.

Tickets are available through Center Stage Ticketing at 649-5561, or the MPC Box Office at 646-4213.

La Virgen del Tepeyac

El Teatro Campesino has just added three more shows, Tuesday, Dec. 18 through Thursday, Dec. 20, of its traditional Christmas miracle play of La Virgen del Tepeyac at the historic Mission San Juan Bautista.

As adapted by Artistic Director Luis Valdez from the centuries-old Mexican folk drama, the play, in a pageant of color, music and dance, recreates the four miraculous apparitions of the Virgin of Guadalupe to the indio Juan Diego outside of Mexico City in 1531. It is performed and sung in Spanish.

The three added performances will begin each evening at 8 p.m. The Old Mission, located on the San Juan Bautista plaza, is accessible to the handicapped. Advance ticket purchase is strongly recommended.

Tickets are $12 for adults, $10 for students and seniors and $6 for children under 12.

For details, call 623-2444.

Foolin' around

ELEANOR WYLDE and Jim Sutty star in Tom Lehrer's comic musical revue Tomfoolery, which opens for a special five-day run to open GroveMont Theater's new Monterey Playhouse at 425 Washington St. in downtown Monterey and to celebrate the new year. Performances are scheduled for 8 p.m. Thursday through Sunday, Dec. 27-30 for a New Year's Weekend Party Extravaganza, and at 9 p.m. Monday, Dec. 31 with a New Year's Eve Champagne Gala. ON STAGE

The production has been directed by GroveMont founder and executive director Stephen Moorer. The cast features Jim Sutty, Kelly Alexander, Eleanor Wylde and Kevin Hanstick. Musical accompaniment is by Barbara Souza. The show includes such well-known Lehrer numbers as The Vatican Rag and Poisoning Pigeons in the Park.

Tomfoolery will play five nights only, Thursday, Dec. 27-30 at 8 p.m. and Monday, Dec. 31 at 9 p.m. Ticket prices Thursday through Sunday are $20 single or $35 for two, including intermission appetizers and refreshments including beer and wine.

Ticket prices for the New Year's Eve Gala are $50 single, $90 for two and includes pre-show reception, after-show champagne buffet and dancing.

For reservations, call the GroveMont box office at 649-6852; for advance tickets, call Center Stage Ticketing at 649-5561.

The Importance of Being Earnest

Oscar Wilde's brilliant and risible farce, The Importance of Being Earnest, is staged by the Staff Players Repertory Company at the Indoor Forest Theater, Carmel.

Wilde's spoofing of the upper classes and the dramatic conventions of the day has delighted audiences every year since its first production in the 1890s. Like many contemporary comic writers, Wilde was more interested in being clever than being truthful, and his young lovers and their parents and guardians offer a stylish and pleasant enjoyment for the holidays. The play is directed by Philip Clarkson.

Curtain is at 8 p.m. Thursdays through Saturdays and 2:30 p.m. Sundays until Dec. 22. The theater is at Mountain View and Santa Rita in Carmel-by-the-Sea.

The Staff Players Repertory Company is the adult support arm of the Children's Experimental Theatre. For reservations or information, call 624-1531.

The Drunkard

The wages of drink are outlined in The Drunkard, when a totally respectable Edward Middleton becomes downtrodden after being tempted with drink. Of course, as in all good melodramas, all ends well with Edward back in the loving arms of his family. The title role is played by Kurt Menke.

California's First Theatre is the setting for The Drunkard. The theater, the oldest in the state, is located at the corner of Scott and Pacific streets in historic downtown Monterey.

Seating is at 7:30 p.m. for the 8 p.m. curtain on Fridays and Saturdays.

For tickets or information, call 375-4916 or 649-5561.

Comic caper

ROBERT COULTER is Stan Laurel and Carey Crockett is Oliver Hardy in Family Fantasy Theater's Nutcracker Caper to be staged Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Dec. 28, 29 and 30 at the Wharf Theater on Fisherman's Wharf in Monterey. For times and ticket information, call the Wharf Theater or Center Stage Ticketing at 649-5561.

JAZZ TIDES

By John Detro

Miracles abound even today

CHRISTMAS WISH: May this season's pragmatic joy ring in your bones like Milt Jackson on vibes, Betty Carter vocal rides, Elvin Jones at his drums. Pragmatic – yes. Nazareth was a funky little place. Folks made jokes about it. Then Godhead's errorless humor gave that poor spot fresh meaning. Such miracles abound even today. Perhaps two quotes will win space within your particular celebrations.

"There are no events but thoughts and the heart's hard turning," Annie Dillard writes, "the heart's slow learning where to love and whom. The rest is merely gossip, and tales for other times."

And the December newsletter from music bookers John Kelly and Connie Booth contains accurate words by mythographer Joseph Campbell. "If you follow your bliss, you put yourself on a kind of track that has been there all the while, waiting for you, and the life that you ought to be living is the one you are living."

CONNIE REMINDS that one of her favorite jazz units – John Handy with Class – will work Highlands Inn on New Year's Eve. Basically a blues reedman with big affection for Ellington and Basie, Handy surrounds himself with four young ladies who play violin and sing very well. They'll welcome old pro vocalist Buddy Conner as guest artist. It's a package; call the hotel if you wish reservations and cost factor.

Some other choices on 1990's final night – Papa Jake and those Abalone Stompers (Holiday Inn Resort); Bill LePine Quartet (Monterey Beach Hotel); Bow Williams Big Band with vocalist Linda Lukenas (Monterey Plaza Hotel); Marvelettes plus Garage Band (Monterey Sheraton); Alan Berman Duo (Doubletree Lobby Lounge); Maxine Howard back from Europe (Yoshi's in Oakland); Les McCann and his Magic Band (Kimball's of San Francisco); Tony Bennett (Fairmont Hotel).

BOBBY McFERRIN's new album – Medicine Music from EMI – already looks like a winner for the genius guy who'll still seem young some decades from now. The title track casts him as a contemporary mojo man: "I got harmonies to give you hope. I got melodies to take you home. And my dance will help your blood flow. I got words to make the devils go." The CD contains a dozen tracks – all written and arranged by Bobby. Overdubbing lets his amazing vocal skills range far, deep, wide.

The McFerrin Voicestra serves this package well. So does his father, an operatic baritone of solid repute. Dedicated to his mother – The 23rd Psalm retooled genderwise. "She makes me lie down in green meadows – " Wonderful stuff.

Another breakthrough. San Francisco Drum Festival presented its first commissioned work and it was Skin Talk: An Ancestral Ballet of Woman. The 40-minute production's based on a parable from the powerful and subtle Yoruba people. Authors – Bobi Cespedes from the Afro-Cuban band Conjunto Cespedes and Carolyn Brandy of the women's jazz quintet Alive.

Locals who saw the piece say it was stirring. I'll pass along background information to a couple of producers who put together Monterey Peninsula shows.

NOT LONG ago, this column reported that Polygram was producing a killer album with vocalist Shirley Horn. Guest artists would include Miles Davis, Toots Thielemans, Wynton and Branford Marsalis on separate cuts, venerable tenorman Buck Hill.

Now the advance cassette has arrived from label spokesperson Ben Mundy – along with an announced release date of next month. Title: You Won't Forget Me.

Miss Horn's quiet excellence draws together the diverse talents. As always, her intelligent pianism contributes much. It's an item that deserves attention when collectors go shopping.

THE DEATH this month of composer Aaron Copland brought an important fact back into public awareness. His quest – putting the sound of our nation's spirit onto paper – led Copland's great mind to study jazz and Latin rhythms. New Orleans, Chicago and Manhattan jazz charts contributed mightily as he worked out fresh approaches.

Leonard Bernstein's comments on Aaron Copland told truth. "He was the composer who would lead American music out of the wilderness. He was The Leader – the one to whom the young always came with their compositions." Not bad.

One key statement by Copland could have been spoken by any jazz heavyweight: 'I think that my music, even when it sounds tragic, is a confirmation. If there is a unifying core in it at all, it is a sense of affirmation."

It's worth mentioning too that recently deceased novelist Lawrence Durrell was fascinated as a young man by the London

RAY'S WAY – World class bassist Ray Drummond took up the instrument while a youngster in local public school music classes of Mel Buffo. Ray says he has signed a four-album contract at DMP Records, the first being a February release with Hank Jones and Billy Higgins. Word came just before Ray and pianist Bill Mays played a riveting duo program in Steinbeck Forum. The young masters demonstrated respect for older artists as tunes by Monk and Bill Evans framed interplay that was witty, thoughtful, swinging. Do Re Mi Music stocks their first DMP package; the second's being recorded right about now. Ray's parents have a Carmel Valley home and were part of the concert audience. (Will Wallace photo.)

jazz scene. He sometimes expressed the wish that he could have been a professional player. Instead, the music entered his manner of novelizing time's circular flow.

Check it out. Chunks of his Alexanderia Quartet read as though they could have been inspired by Bird Parker, Tadd Dameron, Monk, Keith Jarrett. Tadd did do some arranging for the London-based orchestra fronted by Ted Heath.

SIGHT BITES: Nick Williams Music slates a jazz bash on Thursday night (12/20) in the Vista Lobos Room of Carmel's Vista Lobos Park (Third and Torres). He plans the Third Thursday Series throughout next year. Call Nick at 626-9151 to nail down reservations and artist IDs.

The Hidden Valley Music Series concludes on Friday evening (12/21) with a Christmas Concert – vocal quartet and resident conductor Randall Behr from Los Angeles Music Center Opera. Starts at eight o'clock; ducats ($10 apiece) via Center Stage Ticketing or at the door. Dessert bar. Bring your own wine.

The Sheraton's Monterey Bay Club spotlights vocalist Gail Dobson on Thursday night (12/20). Others: Terry Hanck Band (12/21-22), TV football (12/23), unannounced (12/24), Jack and Ed Show (12/25), Alan Berman (12/26).

Recommended night sounds – Monica Harle Trio at Highlands Inn (Fridays and Saturdays); Bill LePine Quartet with multiple reedman John Cortes at Monterey Beach Hotel (Wednesdays through Saturdays); jam sessions hosted by bassist Norm Ross at The Firehouse (Thursdays and Saturdays); Ace Hill's soulful piano plus bassist at Doubletree Lobby Lounge (Thursdays through Saturdays); Brazilian percussionist Helcio Milito with pianist Weber Drummond at Spanish Bay Lobby Lounge (Wednesdays through Sundays); pianist Jan Deneau and friends at Pebble Beach Lodge (Fridays through Sundays). These are the normal play dates; check specific venues for holiday scheduling.

WHAT'S PLAYING AT THE MOVIES

ALMOST AN ANGEL: Paul Hogan of Crocodile Dundee fame, stars in this comedy about an earth-bound angel who must prove he deserves to wear his wings and get to heaven. Rated PG-13. Opens Dec. 21 at the Lighthouse Cinemas. 372-7300.

AVALON: Director Barry Levinson's (Rain Man) warm, funny and touching look back at an immigrant family's trials, triumphs and travails after arriving in Baltimore in the early part of the century. Part of Levinson's "trilogy" of Baltimore-based films, including Tin Men and Diner. Stars Aidan Quinn, Elizabeth Perkins and Armin Mueller-Stahl. Rated PG. At the Dream Theater. 372-1331.

CHILD'S PLAY II: He's baaaack. Chucky, the child's doll possessed by a deranged psycho killer is back and he's ticked off after having been incinerated in the last Child's Play. And again he's after Andy Barclay (Alex Vincent), the young boy from the first movie. Rated R. At the Lighhouse Cinemas with 'Jacob's Ladder.' 372-7300.

DANCES WITH WOLVES: Kevin Costner stars in and directs this sprawling Western about a Civil War hero's acclimation and acceptance into the world of the Sioux Indian during the final years of their free existence in the rapidly changing American West. The title comes from Costner's attempts one day to scare away a wolf from his camp. Rated PG-13. At the Crossroads Cinemas. 624-2792.

EDWARD SCISSORHANDS: Director Tim Burton (Batman, Beetlejuice), helmed this romantic fantasy about a lonely half-man, half-machine (Johnny Depp), who has long sharp shears for hands and is confined to a hilltop mansion until liberated by a kindly Avon lady, played by Dianne Wiest, and her daughter, Winona Ryder. Rated PG-13. At the State Theatre. 372-4555.

GHOST: Patrick Swayze and Demi Moore star in this romantic ghost story about a couple who get mugged, he dies, she lives, but he comes back as a ghost caught between the worlds of the living and dead. Whoopie Goldberg co-stars as a skeptical medium that Swayze enlists in his search for his killers. Rated PG-13. At the Carmel Village Theatre. 625-1200.

HAVANA: Robert Redford stars in this Sydney Pollack film as an American gambler out to win his biggest game of cards yet, only to find himself wagering on a beautiful woman married to a Cuban aristocrat in 1950's, pre-Castro Havana. Rated R. At the State Theatre. 372-4555.

HENRY & JUNE: Director Philip Kauffman's (The Unbearable Lightness of Being), controversial and seductive tale of American writer Henry Miller's liaisons with fellow writer Anais Nin and his wife June in Paris in the '30s. First film to receive the new NC-17 (no children under 17) rating because of its erotically charged scenes. Stars Fred Ward, Uma Thurman and Maria Medeiros in the main roles. Rated NC-17. At the Dream Theater. 372-1331.

HOME ALONE: MacCaulay Culkin stars as a young boy who is accidentally left home alone by his vacationing family three days before Christmas. He's left to defend the home against two bumbling burglars played by Joe Pesci and Daniel Stern. Written and produced by John Hughes. Rated PG. At the Crossroads Cinema. 624-2792.

JACOB'S LADDER: Tim Robbins is a Vietnam veteran who suffers from violent hallucinations, which he suspects may be the result of secret Army drug experiments during the war. He later finds out that many of the men in his company are suffering from similar visions. Adrian Lyne (Fatal Attraction) directed this suspense thriller with overtones of government conspiracy. Rated R. At the Lighthouse Cinemas with 'Child's Play II.' 372-7300.

MEMPHIS BELLE: Matthew Modine stars as the pilot of a B-17 bomber (named the 'Memphis Belle'), who leads a bombing run with a group of young airmen against Nazi Germany during World War II. Rated PG-13. At the Hill Theatre with 'Reversal of Fortune.' 375-2800.

MERMAIDS: Cher, Winona Ryder and Bob Hoskins star in this comedy directed by Richard Benjamin in which Cher plays the well-travelled and flamboyant mother of two children, one of them a straitlaced girl who yearns to be a nun. Hoskins plays Cher's latest boyfriend. Rated PG-13. At the Lighthouse Cinemas. 372-7300.

MISERY: Thriller based on the Stephen King bestseller about an obsessed fan of a writer of romantic novels (James Caan), who rescues him from an auto accident, then doesn't allow him to leave her secluded home, holding him by force against his will. Directed by Rob Reiner. Rated R. At the Valley Cinema. 624-5111.

PREDATOR II: An ally of the alien hunter that Arnold Schwarzennegger killed in the first film is back (but without Arnie), and he's out for blood, in this sequel that takes place in a future filled with heavily armed drug gangs that rule the cities. Stars Danny Glover and Ruben Blades as the two cops out to stop the alien predator, Gary Busey and Maria Conchita Alonzo. Rated R. At the Golden Bough. 624-4044.

THE RESCUERS DOWN UNDER: The popular Disney characters return for a rescue of mates in Australia in this animated film. With an animated featurette, Mickey Mouse in the Prince and the Pauper. Rated G. At the Dream Theater. 372-1331.

REVERSAL OF FORTUNE: Drama about the infamous trial of Claus von Bulow on charges that he murdered his wife brought to the screen by director Barbet Schroeder. Jeremy Irons plays von Bulow, Glenn Close his wife Sunny, and Ron Silver the flamboyant lawyer Alan Dershowitz, who defended von Bulow at his second trial. Rated R. At the Hill Theatre. 375-2800.

ROCKY V: Sylvester Stallone returns as heavyweight champion Rocky Balboa, who discovers in this supposedly last installment of the Rocky saga, that he is not only suffering from irreversible brain damage, but that his accountant has lost all his earnings and the IRS is after him. Directed by John Avildsen of the first Rocky and written by Stallone. Rated PG-13. At the State Theatre. 372-4555.

ROCKY HORROR PICTURE SHOW: A send-up of remembered monster movies, with the added twist of music — "The Time Warp," "Over at the Frankenstein Place," and an audience that seems to know the lines better than the actors. A long-standing cult classic. Rated R. At the Dream Theater. 372-1331.

THE ROOKIE: Clint Eastwood stars in and directed this police-action film as a rough, cigar-chomping veteran of a police auto theft detail whose partner gets killed by a particularly vicious group of car-nappers. His new partner is a suit-and-tie dandy (Charlie Sheen), who comes from a rich background. Eastwood, with the rookie in tow, go after the slimeballs who killed his partner. Rated R. At the Lighthouse Cinemas. 372-7300.

THE RUSSIA HOUSE: Sean Connery and Michelle Pfeiffer star in this thriller based on the bestseller by master spy novelist John LeCarre. Rated R. Opens Dec. 21 at the Carmel Village Theatre. 625-1200.

THREE MEN AND A LITTLE LADY: Sequel to the immensely popular Three Men and a Baby, this film reunites our three heroes (Ted Danson, Steve Guttenberg and Tom Selleck), a few years later when the baby girl left on their doorstep is now 5, with her and her mother living in the spacious bachelor penthouse. The mother, however, agrees to marry an officious director and move to England, setting off a merry chase. Rated PG-13. At the Lighthouse Cinemas. 372-7300.

WHITE PALACE: Susan Sarandon and James Spader star in this drama about a 26-year-old Jewish yuppie who falls for and has a passionate affair with a fortysomething burger stand waitress. She's sloppy and coarse, he's neat and college-educated. Will the relationship survive their vast differences? Rated R. At the Dream Theater. 372-1331.

GroveMont sets open auditions for its new season of plays

OPEN AUDITIONS for the GroveMont Theater's new season of plays has been scheduled for four days in January.

Auditions for Talk Radio by Eric Bogosian and Driving Miss Daisy by Alfred Uhry, have been scheduled for 6 p.m. Monday, Jan. 7 and Tuesday, Jan. 8. Auditions for A Walk in the Woods by Lee Blessing and Steel Magnolias by Robert Harling, have been scheduled for 6 p.m. Monday, Jan. 14 and Tuesday, Jan. 15.

All open auditions will be held at the GroveMont Theater Arts Center, 320 Hoffman St. (between Lighthouse and Hawthorne) in New Monterey.

Talk Radio will be directed by artist in residence, John Rousseau, and will feature GroveMont Artistic Director Stephen Moorer in the role of talk show host Barry Champlain.

Roles are available for six men (all in the adult range), and two women (in the 20-50 range). Rehearsals for the production will begin about Jan. 16, with performances running weekends from Feb. 21 to March 16 at the GroveMont Theater Arts Center.

Driving Miss Daisy will also be directed by Rousseau and will have all roles available. Required are one white woman aged 60-plus, one black man age 60-plus, and one white man age 40-50. Rehearsals begin in March for the production, which will run weekends in May at the GroveMont Theater Arts Center.

A Walk in the Woods will be directed by Moorer and will have all roles available. Required are two men in the 35-65 age range. Rehearsals begin Feb. 25 for the production, which will run weekends from March 28 through April 20 at the center.

Steel Magnolias will be directed by actor/director Sid Cato. Roles are available for four women (in the 18-50 age range). Rehearsals for the production will begin about Feb. 11, with performances running weekends from April 4 through May 12 the GroveMont's new The Monterey Playhouse, 425 Washington St. in downtown Monterey.

For more information, or to obtain scripts in advance, call the GroveMont Theater at 649-6852 or 649-0340.

Hidden Valley will present opera selections

Hidden Valley will present an evening of vocal music hosted by Randall Behr, resident conductor of the Los Angeles Music Center Opera, at 8 p.m. Friday, Dec. 21 and Saturday, Dec. 22 at Hidden Valley Music Seminars in Carmel Valley.

Performing with Behr will be some of the brightest young professional opera singers on the West Coast. The program for the evening will include many favorite opera standards as well as some seasonal music.

The show, which will be repeated at 8 p.m. on Saturday, is part of the nationally known music seminar's "Fridays at 8" music series.

Tickets to either concert are $10 and are available at Center Stage Ticketing at 659-5561, or at the door.

Hidden Valley is located 11.2 miles east of Highway 1 on Carmel Valley Road.

For more information, call 659-3115.

Where else would you have a traditional Seafood Buffet?

BICYCLING

Several scenic lengths of roadway offer pleasant bike riding without heavy traffic hazards. Part of the famous 17-Mile Drive in Pebble Beach is one.

On weekends, holidays and times of major sporting events, bicycle riders are permitted to enter the Pacific Grove gate only.

During normal weekdays, riders may enter any gate during daylight hours with no restricted route. Large groups of more than 10 should enter the Pacific Grove gate and follow the posted route for their own safety, three or four at a time. There is no gate fee for bicyclists, unless bikes are brought in by car. The fee per car is $5.75.

All riders are required upon entry to sign a permit and waiver form, regardless of gate or time of entry.

A particularly lovely part of the Monterey Peninsula is the Pacific Grove shoreline, with its white beaches, picturesque black rocks and beautiful plantings.

A spectacular, two-lane paved bicycle trail stretches for one mile along the craggy Pacific Grove shoreline from the Monterey Bay Aquarium to Lovers' Point. It is free and open to the public.

Carmel's Scenic Road is a short ride one way from north to south.

A bicycles-only path extends from the extreme north end of Seaside, past Fort Ord and all the way to Marina. Regular users of the trail consider it a beautiful trip.

All cities on the Monterey Peninsula permit bicycling on the public streets, subject to all traffic rules which apply to automobiles, including driving on the right, stopping at stop signs, signaling to turn, carrying lights at night and the like. Riding on sidewalks is not allowed.

A portion of the freeway – Highway 1 – can be used. It begins just north of Aquajito Road and parallels the freeway, ending just north of Reservation Road in Marina.

A wide shoulder suitable for bicycling has been constructed along Carmel Valley Rd., which turns off Highway 1 south of Carmel. However, this is only along the relatively short four-lane stretch. Farther up the Valley the road is two lanes and some of it could be risky for cyclists.

Experienced bicyclists point out, however, that riding is as safe as the cyclist and his bike make it for him. Observing the road rules, keeping himself in good physical trim for biking and keeping his wheels in good condition are pluses for safety.

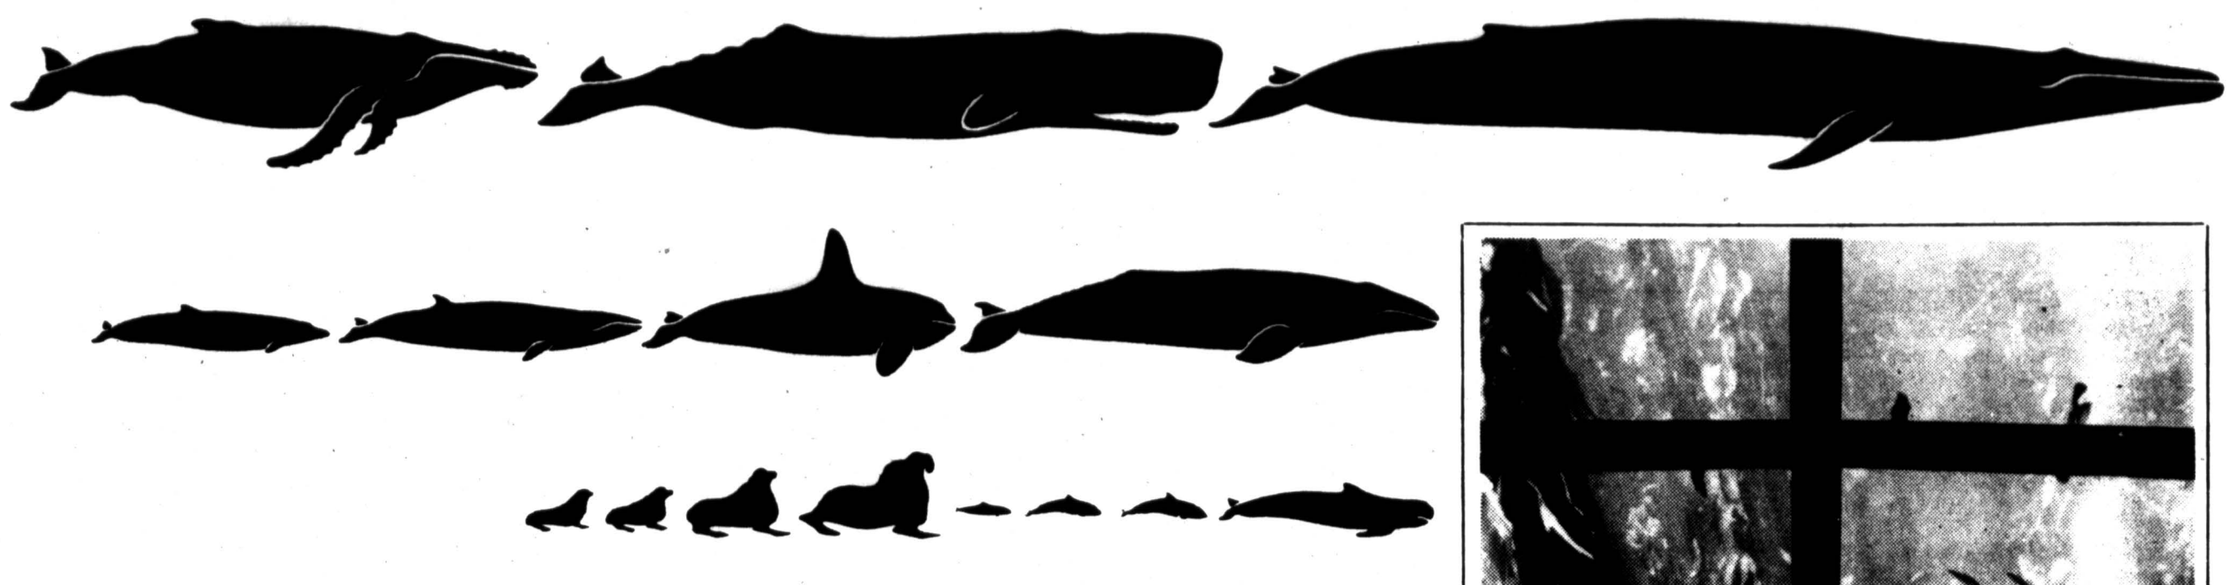
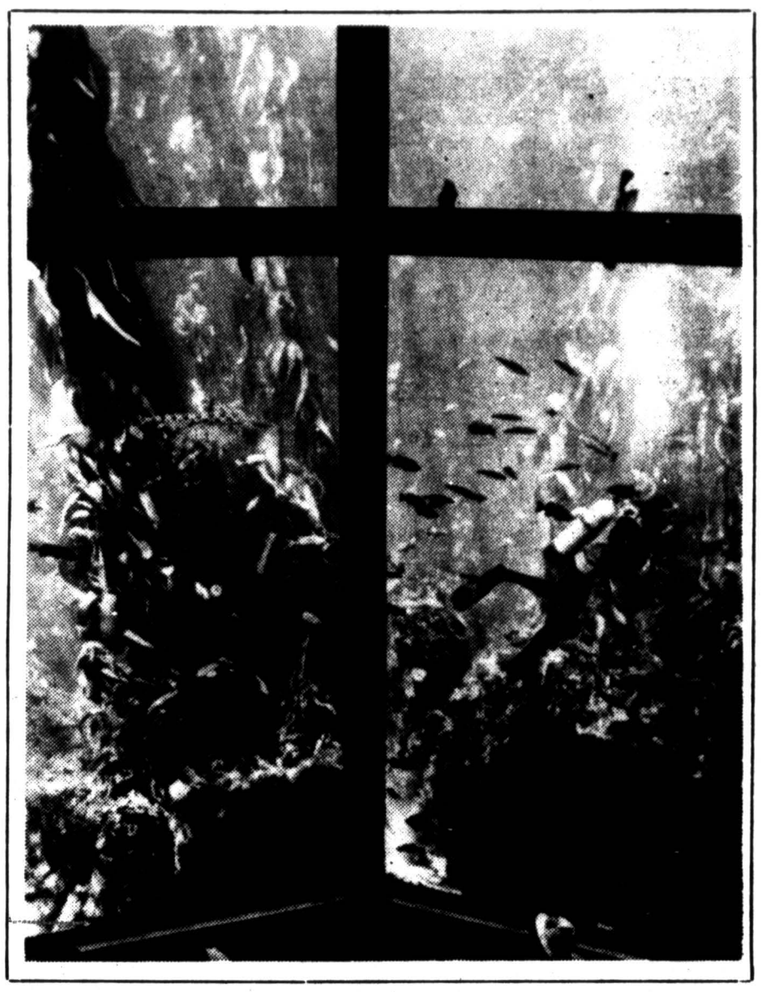
Monterey Bay Aquarium





THIS 335,000 gallon exhibit represents a diver's view of a towering kelp forest community. As giant kelp needs sunlight and wave motion to survive, the 28-foot-high tank is open to the sky. Jets hidden in the rockwork and a surge machine maintain vital water movement.

IT'S STATE-OF-THE-ART, affording an up-close and personal view of some 525 species of fishes, mammals, birds, invertebrates and plants found in Monterey Bay.

The Monterey Bay Aquarium, constructed "in the footprint" of the Hovden Cannery on the west end of Cannery Row – opened to the public in October 1984. A $50 million gift from David and Lucile Packard of Silicon Valley fame made into reality the conversion of a former cannery site into a celebration of colorful and complex Monterey Bay marine life, from sharks to brittlestars to sea otters.

Open 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily except Christmas, the Monterey Bay Aquarium houses 23 major indoor and outdoor galleries and exhibits focusing on the many habitats of Monterey Bay. The aquarium is now a self-supporting, non-profit entity.

Rooflines and even lighting fixtures echo the original Cannery Row style documented by John Steinbeck in his 1945 novel of the same name. Visitors entering the aquarium walk past the original Hovden Cannery boilers, pumphouse and warehouse. These were virtually the only features that could be salvaged from the structure. The rest of the aquarium is new and strictly high-tech. Its 33 major exhibit windows, manufactured by Mitsubishi Rayon of Japan, include panels that are seven and one-quarter inches thick and weight 2.73 tons each. Two 16-inch diameter, 980-foot-long intake lines draw up to 2,050 gallons of sea water per minute from a depth of 55 feet in Monterey Bay. The seawater system permits varying levels of filtration – depending on the needs of the 6,500 specimens that live in the aquarium. These levels range from raw seawater to pressure-sand filtered, deembolyzed seawater.

And then there are the animals. The Monterey Bay Aquarium is a place where visitors can gaze up into the cathedral-like branches of a kelp forest as a diver explains its intricacies from the other side of a seven-inch-thick window, stare eye-to-eye with a tank's worth of frisky sea otters and brave petting a bat ray that has no stinger.

Virtually all of its inhabitants can be found in Monterey Bay.

Also described by many as "a gawker," the third-of-a-million gallon Kelp Forest exhibit presents a diver's-eye view of a complex undersea community. The exhibit can be viewed from three levels within the aquarium, and houses a towering forest of Macrocystis pyrifera, the California coastline's giant kelp. Jets hidden in the rockwork walls and a surge machine maintain the constant water motion kelp requires. This seaweed, which locally grows up to 10 inches a day, forms a canopy open to the sunlight at the surface.

Also in the "gawker" category is the Monterey Bay Habitats exhibit, a 90-foot-long, hourglass-shaped tank that depicts four bay habitats: the deep reefs, sandy seafloor, shale reefs and the wharf. Large sharks, bat rays, salmon, striped bass and other open-ocean fishes roam the Monterey Bay exhibit. Viewers have a choice to observe the goings-on through bubble-shaped windows or a series of massive acrylic panes.

An interlocking series of habitat galleries and interpretive exhibits explores the facts, myths and mysteries of marine life in the region. Here the curious may study an elegant chambered nautilus hovering in mid-water, sleek and speedy squid, the giant octopus, hermit crabs, sand dollars and dozens of other oceanic denizens.

The Monterey Bay Aquarium operates many programs, including research and education. Approximately 100,000 persons are members, entitling them to unlimited admission, a newsletter, special programs and other benefits. For details, call the Membership Department, (408) 648-4880.

The Monterey Bay Aquarium is located at 886 Cannery Row on its west end, between the borders of Monterey and Pacific Grove. Admission is $8 general, $5.75 for students and senior citizens (65 and over), $3.50 for children ages 3 through 12. Group rates for 20 or more are available by reservation. Call (408) 648-4860, between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. Tickets can also be pre-ordered through Ticketron outlets. There are no Ticketron outlets on the Monterey Peninsula, however.

All exhibits are wheelchair-accessible.

For recorded information about the aquarium, call (408) 648-4888.

For the convenience of aquarium visitors who have their own cars, parking is available at the Cannery Row Parking Garage. Rates are 75 cents per hour, up to a $5 maximum.

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE
of ELIZABETH M. HARRINGTON, AKA BETTY
CASE NO. MP11640

1. To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate or both of Elizabeth M. Harrington aka Beth Harrington and E.M. Harrington.

A PETITION has been filed by James D. Hansen in the Superior Court of California, County of Monterey.

THE PETITION requests that James D. Hansen be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests the decendent's WILL and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The will and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court.

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A HEARING on the petition will be held Jan. 11, 1990 at 9:30 a.m. in Dept. A located at 1200 Aguajito Road, Monterey Ca. 93940.

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent credtiro of the deceased, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed bythecourt within four months from the date of first issuance of letters as provided in section 9100 of the California Probate Code. The time for filing claims will not expire before four months from the hearing date notice above.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a formal Request for Special Notice of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in section 1250 of the California Probate Code. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

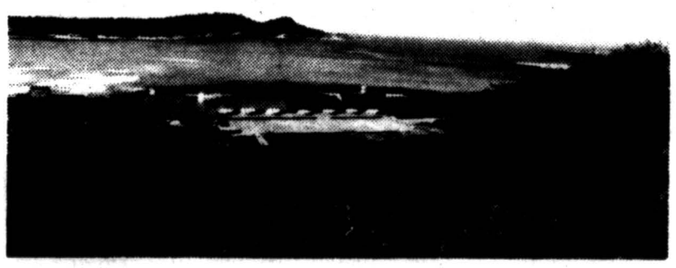
A HOLIDAY HOUSE



A GLORIOUS VIEW will greet you every day of the year from this well-built home in Carmel Meadows, an area of fine homes on a spit of land jutting into the ocean a few minutes south of Carmel. There's lots of space for you and your growing family. The convenient floor plan features a big living room with fireplace, dining room, den, and kitchen, along with three bedrooms and three baths. You can enjoy the view across to Point Lobos, and you can stroll down to the seashore and inhale the bracing air. $750,000.

JUST IN TIME FOR CHRISTMAS!

A BEAUTIFULLY remodeled home with a detached studio in Carmel's Paradise Park, ready for you to move in right away. An inviting entry leads to a good-sized living room (16 by 20) with fireplace, beyond which is an attractive kitchen that will take your eye immediately. A master bedroom leads to a bricked patio in the rear, and there's another comfortable bedroom. New wiring, new roof, new plumbing, and new furnace for worry — free living. A generous use of skylights admits floods of sunlight. $464,500.

SANTA WANTS OFFERS

A WONDERFUL family home in Carmel's prestigious Hatton Fields, well-sited on a big fenced lot with ample play space for the youngsters and their pets. A big family/dining room is off the kitchen, and to the rear is a semi-private suite — perfect for in-laws and guests. Two other comfortable bedrooms are in the front part of the house, along with a bright and cheerful living room. In addition, there are two and one-half baths. Take a look to see how this home could be updated to fit your needs. REDUCED to $369,000 — an incredible buy for this fine area!

STYLE PLUS A VIEW

A HOME OF RARE CHARM...stunningly renovated and within a couple of blocks of Carmel Mission. The living room offers a wonderful view of Point Lobos, along with random-width floor, beamed ceiling, and handsome fireplace. You'll like the cozy dining area and the state-of-the-art kitchen. There are three comfortable bedrooms on the main floor. Downstairs are a one-bedroom guest suite, and a studio. An elevator connects the guest suite with the main floor. $1,495,000.
